

Japs Smashing Southern Line Of Chinese in Nanking Area

Drive Defenders to Take Link in 'Hindenburg' Chain

HIT OTHER FRONTS

Chinese Preparing Defense Posts in Event Of Siege

Shanghai — (U)— Japanese troops today cracked the southern pivot of the Chinese "Hindenburg" line defending Nanking and struck shattering blows along its central and northern fronts.

Fighting through mud and rain, the Japanese drove last Chinese defenders from Kashing and occupied that vital southern link in the "Hindenburg" chain. Central Japanese columns approached to within three miles of Soochow, the line's key stone, and northern detachments threatened to make untenable Chinese positions at Changshu.

About 125 miles northwest of the line, twelve Chinese divisions under the veteran General Tang Shen-Chi entrenched themselves in strong defense positions just outside Nanking. The Nanking official spokesman declared they were prepared to defend the city "to the last."

Prepare Defense Posts

Inside Nanking's walls, two divisions of Szechwan province troops, rushed to the capital from the interior after Shanghai fell to Japanese hands Nov. 9, prepared defense posts to be used in case the city eventually is encircled and besieged.

United States and other foreign embassies completed arrangements to evacuate Nanking and follow the Chinese foreign office to Hankow as soon as Chinese officials announced the shift.

Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson was understood to be ready to go to Hankow on an American gunboat. He would be accompanied by Willys R. Peck, counselor of the embassy, and Clayton W. Aldridge, second secretary. J. Hall Paxton and George Acheson, Jr., second secretaries, were expected to remain in Nanking.

Rush Reinforcements

Disparages from Tsingtau, seaport of the North China province of Shantung, said the Chinese first army was hurrying westward to reinforce Chinese lines south of the Yellow river.

Chinese were said to have repulsed three Japanese attempts to cross the stream but fighting was in progress at Lokow, just south of the river and north of Tsinanfu, the provincial capital.

Heavy artillery firing was heard north of Tsinanfu, Consul John M. Allison left the city for Nanking, but 30 Americans remained.

Chinese officers said they expected Japanese to attempt a landing along Laichow bay for a drive toward Weishin to isolate the Shantung peninsula from the warfare. Japanese have extensive commercial interests in the area.

Along the center of the "Hindenburg" line 50 miles west of Shanghai, Japanese advancing along the Shanghai-Nanking railroad reached Nansukio, the last Chinese defense line before Soochow itself.

Commerce Body Supporting 7-Point Building Program; U. S. Loans Contemplated

LABOR LEADER SLAIN

Minneapolis police sought the killer of Patrick J. Corcoran, north-west labor leader, whose body was found with a bullet in the brain. Governor Benson spurred the hunt with the offer of a $500 personal reward. The Joint Teamsters' council, $10,000, and a newspaper, $500.

Police Baffled in Hunt for Slayers in Minneapolis

Charges of 'Gangsterism' Are 'All Bunk,' Chief Declares

Minneapolis — (U)—Police said they were stymied today in their investigation of the assassination of Patrick J. Corcoran, Minneapolis American Federation of Labor leader, and denounced two CIO organizers who charged gangsterism in the labor movement here.

William Maueith and Hilliard Smith, Local 1140, United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, sent an open letter to Mayor George E. Leach demanding an investigation of the slaying and "gangsterism and racketeering" in Minneapolis.

Mayor Leach refused to comment but Chief of Police Frank Forestal asserted: "Their charges are all bunk."

One of the clues being checked by detectives was a statement they took from Cedric Adams, columnist for a Minneapolis newspaper. In his column of Nov. 9 Adams wrote that he had been informed that "a prominent Minneapolis labor leader" was to be taken for a ride within two weeks.

Police obtained the name of the informant from Adams but guarded it closely until they can locate and question him.

Meyer Lewis, representative of William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, was said by detectives about reports that a labor war was imminent here. Lewis said he knew of no such reports.

Washington — (U)—Widespread efforts of the government and private industry to stimulate business activity produced these developments today:

1. The housing conference of the United States Chamber of Commerce endorsed a seven-point program, headed by publicity to popularize home owning, as a means of increasing residential construction.
2. A high federal official indicated President Roosevelt may provide loans from the Reconstruction Finance corporation to help the home building campaign.
3. A house tax subcommittee, having agreed tentatively to exempt from the undistributed profits tax all corporations with net incomes under $5,000, is seeking a method of giving graduated exemptions to larger corporations.
4. Speaker Bankhead, endorsing the unemployment census, indicated congress would study methods of stimulating industries which could absorb idle labor.

Chamber's Report

The chamber of commerce meeting said home building could be stimulated by:

- Stronger competition against other bidders for the prospective home-owners' dollar, correcting misconceptions of building costs, adjustment of business taxes, re-writing obsolete building codes, coordination within the building industry, better financing, and support of labor.

First of all, a committee report said, prospective purchasers of small homes must be sold on the economic advantages of home ownership.

It was learned the RFC is prepared to match dollars with private interests in subscribing capital for national mortgage associations, with would build large scale housing projects and buy mortgages to unfreeze other capital already invested in real estate.

Offer Ignored

Jesse Jones, RFC chairman, made a similar offer more than a year ago but found no takers because of alleged defects in the law authorizing the RFC.

Vote $25,000 For Paving of City Streets

Will be Connecting Links Between Route 10 And Trunk Z

VOTE 22 TO 19

Amount Is Half of $50,000 Requested by Appleton

An appropriation of $25,000 toward paving of Fourth ward streets in Appleton connecting County Trunk Z and Highway 10 was made by the county board this morning by a vote of 22 to 19. The resolution included the stipulation that the city furnish a like amount for the improvements.

The action disposed of the city's request for $50,000 for the project made about a year ago. The request before the board from time to time but no decision had ever been made.

Streets involved are South River, John and Fremont streets and Kernan avenue. Supervisor Lathrop, chairman of the highway committee which brought in the resolution, said the construction work could be carried out so that $50,000 would be sufficient for the improvements.

Supervisors voting for the $25,000 appropriation were Bottensack, Conradt, Garvey, Schmidt, Gunderson, Jacobs, Kreutzberg, Lathrop, Long, Mayer, McDaniel, Mueller, Muen-ser, Otis, Prihnow, Reichel, Schaefer, Scheurle, Steenis, Wichmann, Zerbel and Mack. Opposed were Supervisors Black, Blake, Black, Connelley, Dempsey, Dietrich, Esler, Falk, Genske, Grunwaldt, Konrad, Kreutzman, Krueger, Lang, O'Connor, Rogers, Vande Yacht, Williams and Zutiches.

Further study on a southern connecting link for the city with Superhighway 41 will be made by the county board. A resolution instructing the chairman to name a committee of five supervisors to study the matter with the highway committee, city and state officials was adopted. Among the possible routes to be considered are extension of College avenue, improvement of Highway 125, extension of Spencer street and relocation of Highway 125 along the Chicago and Northwestern tracks to Railroad street. The committee is to report at the February session.

Report Adopted

A report of the highway committee recommending an appropriation of $1200 to provide equipment to include all cities and village in the county in the police radio system was approved.

A proposal to take the county police from the jurisdiction of the highway committee and put them under a county police committee was made but action on the resolution was postponed.

'CONFESSION' READ

Pittsfield, Ill. — (U)—A purported "confession" by the Rev. C. E. Newton (above) to the slaying of Mrs. Dennis Kelly, his "devout friend," was recited to a circuit court jury today at the minister's trial on a charge of murder.

Prosecuting Attorney Walter Stillwell of Marion County, Mo., related the details of a statement he said the Baptist preacher signed last July 15.

"Rev. Newton said he alone was involved, no one else was guilty and no suspicion should be placed on anyone else," Stillwell declared from the witness stand.

Board Votes Down Appropriation for Connecting Link

Decide 25 to 16 Against Granting $50,000 for Rebuilding Route

The county board yesterday afternoon voted 25 to 16 against making an appropriation of $50,000 for relocating Highway 125 to give the city of Appleton a southern connecting link with Superhighway 41.

Supervisor Lang, Kimberly, said the estimated budget figure was "astounding" and felt that action on the grant should be postponed at least until next February. Supervisor Vande Yacht, Little Chute, also cited increased county costs for next year and said that the city of Appleton was asking for the appropriation at an inopportune time, he favored delay. He said Little Chute also had been promised a connecting link, but all it had secured was some little improvement of a road that already had blacktop paving.

Chairman Mike Mack, Shioclon, said postponement would make little difference and said action should be taken immediately on the matter. Expressing his own opinion, the chairman said Appleton was entitled to the amount. Senator Mack suggested that the county float a bond issue, which could be issued for about 2 per cent.

Oppose Bond Issue

Supervisor Bottensack, Dale, said the city was paying part of the allotments made for the farm-to-market road projects and said the grant should be made and placed

Denies Buying Program Broke Federal Law

Socony-Vacuum Attorney Says Purchases 'Right And Proper'

ARGUMENTS ENDED

Government Attorney to Reply Monday to Defense Motions

Madison — (U)—Louis Treadwell of New York, counsel for the Socony-Vacuum Oil company, stated today in federal district court what apparently is to be the position of the defense in the government's gasoline price-fixing case.

"We concede," he said, "there was a buying program in the mid-continent area that we participated in, and that was right and proper under the law."

Treadwell argued for a directed verdict of acquittal for several Socony-Vacuum officials.

The government alleges major company gasoline buying programs in the mid-continent and east Texas oil fields were part of a conspiracy to raise prices. The defense contends the companies sought to stabilize the industry by methods approved by the government during the period of the NRA petroleum code.

Treadwell was followed by W. L. Cunningham, Arkansas City, Kans., who asked dismissal of his client, Clyde M. Boggs of Arkansas City, president of the Western Petroleum Refiners association.

Denies Conspiracy

Boggs, Cunningham said, is accused of getting independent refiners to curtail production as part of the alleged conspiracy.

"There isn't any evidence in this record that any independent refiner curtailed his production at any time," Cunningham said. "Mr. Boggs, beginning in October, 1935, made an analysis of the refinery statistics each month as to what would be an economical production. There is no evidence that any refiner carried out these recommendations."

In fact, Cunningham added, the refiners overran these estimates every month.

Government attorneys will reply to the various defense motions next Monday.

Judge Stone told defense attorneys that he wanted them to complete today their arguments for directed verdicts.

House Committee Votes Marketing Quotas for Corn

Single Objection Bars Resolution On War in Orient

WASHINGTON — (U)—A single objection prevented the house today from considering a resolution to declare that a state of war exists between China and Japan.

Representative Sauthoff (P-Wis.) asked for immediate consideration of the measure. Representative Johnson (D-Tex.), third ranking member of the house foreign affairs committee, objected.

Laughter and applause were the only audible reactions to the incident.

Over in the senate side, Senator Nye (R-N. D.) announced a bi-partisan group of senators would meet next week to consider drafting a resolution to put the senate on record as recognizing that a state of war exists in the Far East.

Senate Group to Act Tomorrow on 'Ever-Normal Granary'

OUTLOOK BRIGHTER

Expect Passage of Agriculture and Pay-Hour Bills

Washington — (U)—Congressional committees neared completion of farm control bills today while senators and representatives devoted another day to talk.

Chairman Smith (D-S.C.) announced his senate committee would vote tomorrow on an "ever-normal granary" bill. The house committee, taking up individual items, voted marketing quotas for corn and voted down processing taxes on both corn and wheat.

Senator Connally (D-Texas) continued a filibuster by southerners against the anti-lynching bill.

A house tax subcommittee tentatively agreed today to increase the exemptions from the undistributed profits tax and to make up some of the revenue that would be lost by boosting the normal corporate tax.

Wants Sign Removed

In the anti-lynching debate, Connally demanded removal of a big sign demanding lynching from the wall of the senate chamber.

The house rivers and harbors committee ordered hearings to begin next Tuesday on regional planning, a point in President Roosevelt's program for the special congressional session.

Prospects improved for enacting wage-hour standards and crop control legislation, other points in the president's program, before congress quits for the Christmas holidays.

A statement by John L. Lewis, terming the wage-hour bill "undeniably sound" in principle, despite "serious limitations," encouraged its sponsors to redouble efforts to get the bill before the house.

Lewis wrote Chairman Norton (D-N. J.) of the house labor committee that Labor's Non-Partisan League, which he heads, would do everything possible to bring about passage of the measure as soon as possible.

Mrs. Norton, who also has asked Secretary Perkins and President William Green of the American Federation of Labor for their views, continued her campaign to force the bill from the house rules committee. A petition to accomplish this has been signed by more than half the required 218 members.

Debate Next Week

Although some leaders remained dubious about the wage-hour bill's chances at this session, they agreed that both house and senate probably could start debating farm legislation on Monday.

Details of the measures were not in final form, but Secretary Wallace's ever-normal granary program is expected to form a base for marketing quota provisions.

Democratic Leader Barkley predicted the senate could pass the farm bill in a week, and that the anti-lynching measure would take another week.

That would leave the final two weeks of the session for the government reorganization bill. Some senators, however, forecast the farm debate would take up most of the remaining time.

Doubt Action on Taxes

A number of legislators, eager to obtain relaxation of the corporate taxes on business, still were talking hopefully of obtaining action at this session. But leaders doubted the possibility, in the belief that the house subcommittee studying the question would not report in time.

In the meantime, house members were speaking on any subject that struck their fancy, and southern senators were prolonging their filibuster against the anti-lynching bill.

Opponents of the bill were jubilant over their apparent success in preventing a vote before the farm legislation is ready for debate. They have conceded, however, that the measure eventually will pass, for it has a preferred status after the farm bill is out of the way.

Demand Probe of Bullitt's Alleged Warning to Poland

Washington — (U)—Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) and Senator Lewis (D-Ill.) joined today in asking an investigation of a report that William C. Bullitt, American ambassador to France, had been sent to Poland to "warn" that country against participating in the Italian-German-Japanese anti-communist pact.

Vandenberg interrupted the anti-lynching filibuster on the senate floor to read a newspaper dispatch from Paris which said Bullitt had gone to Poland for that purpose.

The account said Bullitt was understood to be "acting under instructions from President Roosevelt."

Senator Lewis asserted that an effort should be made at once to "ascertain the facts" from the state department and the president.

"It is inconceivable," he commented, "that the ambassador to France would have blundered into such action."

The Correct Way To Dream

"Financial conditions only need a lively imagination to bring general and steady improvement" said a noted industrialist recently. So, suppose you'd like to own a fine motor car. Then just imagine you've won $100,000 in a puzzle contest and a half million in the Stock Exchange. Next, study the Used Cars listed in The Post-Crescent classified want-ads, and no doubt your imagination will turn into fact. Here's an ad that brought wide-awake success:

Auto Show Opens Today; Vets Entertain Tonight

With 14 varieties of new 1938 American cars on display, the Appleton Auto show opened this afternoon in Armory G.

A highlight of the 3-day show will be the appearance at 8:30 this evening of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of Manitowish in their musical comedy "Boo-Loon-Belle."

Acrobatic and ballroom dancing, comedy skits, a chorus of thick-legged ex-soldiers, music and songs will feature the show in which both men and women will perform. The Veterans of Foreign Wars, Harvey Pierce post, of Appleton is sponsoring the auto display, with Carl Rehfeldt, commander, as general chairman. The armory is decorated in a military manner with

Two Killed as Train Strikes Automobile

Marshfield — (U)—Two persons were killed and a third severely injured when an Omaha passenger train struck an automobile on a railroad crossing in the village of Chilli 12 miles west of here, shortly after 1:30 a. m. today.

The dead are Leonard Forderbrueck, Neillsville, and Mrs. Rudy Selk Womac, Chilli. Marvin Grap, Neillsville, is in a Marshfield hospital suffering from fractured ribs, severe scalp and facial lacerations and possible internal injuries.

The train continued for more than 1,100 feet before it could be brought to a stop, and then backed 12 miles to Marshfield to bring Grap to a hospital.

Pontiac Workers Will Not Accede to International's Plea

Pontiac, Mich. — (U)—The Pontiac local of the United Automobile Workers of America thunders its rejection of a plea from the international union to abandon a sit-down strike in the plant of the Fisher Body corporation here, early today.

In a tumultuous meeting which began last night and continued nearly six hours, the auto workers voted by acclamation to proceed with the strike after Fred Pieper, a member of the international executive board, urged them to return to work.

Dorr V. Mitchell, president of the local, joined with Pieper in asking the men to discontinue the strike, which began Wednesday night and left 14,721 General Motors corporation employees idle.

Mitchell said the sit-down was "unauthorized" and declared the turn over to the members of the local's strike fund, which is controlled by local union officers. The 2,000 members at the meeting had to use the fund for the men who have held the body plant two days and nights.

Both the U. A. W. A. and General Motors professed ignorance of plans to negotiate a settlement. Corporation executives said neither the Fisher plant nor the Pontiac Motor car factory, dependent upon the body-producing unit, would open before Monday.

U. S. Preparing to Revise Its Trade Pact With Canada

Negotiations are Linked With Those Between Washington, London

Washington (AP)—The state department, setting out on its most ambitious effort to increase world trade, linked negotiations for a new Canadian trade treaty today with its efforts to do more business with Great Britain.

Secretary Hull announced last night that a revision of the reciprocal trade treaty with Canada was contemplated. Earlier, he had made known that the United States and Great Britain at last had agreed to work out a similar pact. The three countries control a major share of international trade.

The Canadian treaty went into effect in 1936. The theory of such pacts, which the administration says has been proved true, is that a lowering of trade barriers stimulates business and makes for good will.

Lower Tariff Rates

Signers agree to reduce tariffs on imports from each other, the affected commodities to be items which one nation produces in excess of its needs and which the other nation lacks.

The decisions of Canada and Great Britain to carry on discussions were heralded widely as constituting a wedge into the virtually "closed corporation" of the British commonwealth of nations.

At least partial abrogation of the system of empire preferences would result, observers said. If Britain agrees to relax the restrictive duties which it now imposes on American and other non-empire goods.

Comparative Benefits

The United States is interested primarily in selling more agricultural products in the rich British market. It is prepared in turn to grant concessions to British manufactured articles.

Unofficial observers suggested that Canada may be actuated by a hope of obtaining new concessions from the United States to offset any losses she may suffer from deeper American penetration of the United Kingdom's agricultural market.

The United States sold $384,151,000 worth of goods to Canada in 1936 and bought $375,832,000. The comparative figures for 1935, before the treaty went into effect, were $233,194,000 and $286,444,000.

So far this year, the state department said, the United States' sales to Canada are 38 per cent above 1936, and Canadian sales to this country are up 21 per cent.

Headless Body Is Taken From Well

Discovery Substantiates Slaying Confession Of Utah Man

St. George, Utah—A headless body, exhumed from an old well into which it was cast nearly three years ago, mutely verified today the strange confessions of two men of a killing disclosed by neighborhood gossip.

The body was identified by trousers, sweater, belt and shoes, said Sheriff Antonio B. Prince, as that of Spencer Malan, 35, who disappeared March 17, 1935.

First degree murder charges were filed against Charles Bosshardt, 25, who told Prince he killed Malan in a ranch fight and later married the man's widow, and George Schaefer, 33, her brother, who said he helped "dispose" of the body.

Both men said they kept the secret from their wives. Schaefer had acquired three through divorces since the slaying—and were surprised the killing had been disclosed. The sheriff said, however, he had been investigating for a year after the men had dropped significant hints.

Mrs. Bosshardt and the third Mrs. Schaefer assured their husbands they would "stand by them." Bosshardt said he struck Malan with an iron pipe after the rancher attacked him—"it was his life or mine."

Prince said Malan's head "apparently was twisted from the body during its 110-foot plunge" into the well.

Borrowing would be done by public sale of bonds and debentures, guaranteed as to principal and 3 per cent interest by the federal housing authority.

Although there appeared little chance congressional leaders would call for a revision of business taxes before the regular session in January, a house subcommittee was going ahead with its study of methods of easing the undistributed profits and capital gains levies.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ky.) said a system for aiding corporations with incomes above $5,000 cannot be worked out until the treasury determines how various proposals would affect federal income. Some of these would:

Proposed Exemption

Grant all corporations a flat exemption of perhaps $5,000.

Provide complete exemption for all corporations with incomes up to $25,000 or $30,000.

Exempt a graduated percentage of income, the percentages being

Greisch Warns Against Dumping at Jones Park

Claude M. Greisch, deputy health officer, today warned persons living in the vicinity of Jones park against throwing rubbish and cans down the hill and into the park. The health department has had several complaints from the park board which wants the practice stopped. Persons living on Prospect avenue, Eighth street, Elm street or Lawrence court abutting the park are being urged to report anyone who violates the ordinance.

Counties in North Continue to Post Land for Hunting

Deer 'Rebellion' Fails to Disturb Conservation Department

(Post-Crescent Madison Bureau)

Madison—Whether the state conservation department is justified in allowing an open season on deer this year continued this week to be a moot question among sportsmen and conservationists in general.

While the controversy over the wisdom of the 3-day season decision waged, northern counties continued to show their defiance of the order by voting to restrict hunting in thousands of acres of county land.

This week Adams county joined Vilas and Sawyer counties, originators of the deer "rebellion" by voting to post all tax delinquent lands in the county. Adams county is protesting against the season because it will be the first in about 50 years in that area.

Remain Unconcerned

Despite the storm its order has raised, the conservation department and the conservation commission, policy making body which heads the department, apparently remained unconcerned.

In a formal release this week, Director H. W. McKenzie announced that despite the opposition of Vilas county authorities, hunters will find 145,000 acres of state land federal land open to them when the season opens for three days Nov. 26. Sawyer county has about 72,000 acres of land accessible to the public, he said. Up until Wednesday the department had not yet given official notice to the action of the Adams county board of supervisors.

The commission is similarly undisturbed by the ruckus the open deer season in an odd year has caused. R. H. Fischer, Shawano member and secretary of that body, said here yesterday that the commission is pondering means to "educate" the northern officials against such ill-advised actions.

Unless there has been some "glorious lying," said he, there is plenty of evidence to show that the deer population is large enough this year to withstand a three-day shooting season. Fischer, a sportsman and game farm operator, said the order for a season this year is an experiment. "If it doesn't work we can go back to the old system next year," he declared. This is the first year in many years that there has been an open deer season for two successive years.

Snow and Cold, Weatherman Says

Mercury at 18 Above Here This Morning, Lowest of Fall

The mercury slipped down to 18 degrees above at 6 o'clock this morning in Appleton, the coldest fall, and today's weather reports carried a forecast of continued cold and snow flurries tonight and tomorrow.

For the 24-hour period ending at 9 o'clock this morning, the highest temperature in the city was 29, according to charts at the Wisconsin Michigan Power company plant. At noon today the thermometer atop the Post-Crescent building registered 24 degrees.

For the first time this fall, Associated Press weather reports indicated severe weather in the nation. Cheyenne, Wyo., had eight below zero yesterday to qualify as the country's coldest city. Miami, Fla., reported 74, the warmest.

relatively high for corporations whose incomes are only slightly above $5,000 and moving gradually downward until corporations with $50,000 or $100,000 income would receive no exemption.

To offset an estimated revenue loss of $19,900,000 from exempting corporations with net incomes below $5,000, the subcommittee was considering an increase in the normal corporate tax. Some members proposed that this tax start at 11 or 12 per cent and graduate up to 13, 16 and 19 per cent.

Affects Relief

The result of these efforts to help business—housing construction, tax modification, and the like—will influence administration decisions on future work relief expenditures. The unemployment census now being taken, federal officials said, also will be a factor.

House Democratic Leader Rayburn said last night in a radio appeal for support of the census: "To put several million men back to work requires that we shall decide whether government is to make work, or private industry is to absorb them."

Speaker Bankhead, appearing on the same program, said that after the information about the jobless situation, "we can give consideration intelligently to plans for the stimulation of those industries which would absorb these workers and make of them productive units in our national economy."

Value of P.T.A. Stressed At Clintonville Meeting

Clintonville—"Our children are our finest heritage and we cannot do too much for them" was one of the opening statements made by Clarence Zachow, president of the Parent-Teachers association, when he welcomed the parents and teachers to the November meeting of the organization Wednesday evening at the high school auditorium.

This thought was echoed by the program speaker, Miss May Roach, an instructor at the Stevens Point Teachers College, who chose for her subject, "Why Belong to a P. T. A.?"

Miss Roach pointed out that every citizen in our democracy has a responsibility to develop good and useful character traits, teachers are expected to do more than teach theory they must be exemplary in their living. Parents, too, were admonished to set examples for their children by creating an air of cheerfulness in the home.

Miss Roach's talk was punctuated with anecdotes and humorous personal experiences, which kept her audiences in a laughing mood. Following her talk, the P. T. A. members and visitors remained for a social period. Refreshments were served by a committee composed of Mesdames R. E. Knister, G. A. Seidel and Irving Auld.

The Central Circle of the Congregational Dorcas society met Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George Laabs on E. Eleventh street. Plans were made for a rummage sale at the church basement on Nov. 27, and for a Christmas party to be held at the next regular meeting on Dec. 15. The meeting was followed by a luncheon served to about 25 members and visitors by the hostess.

Clintonville to Be 'Honor City' At Amateur Night

Appleton Masons Will Sponsor Contest Friday, Nov. 26

Clintonville will be the "honor city" and Clintonville entertainers will compete at "Major Bowes Night" which will be held by the Appleton Masons in the Masonic temple Friday night, Nov. 26.

Between 10 and 15 acts are expected to make up the program at which Dr. V. E. Marshall will play the role of Major Bowes, William Montgomery the master of ceremonies, and F. F. Wheeler the radio announcer.

Winners, determined by ballots distributed among the audience, will be given cash prizes. Walter E. Olen, president of the Four Wheel Drive at Clintonville, will be the principal speaker at the amateur program.

Masons, their families and friends, will gather first for a 6:30 dinner at the temple and the program will be held about an hour later. After the Clintonville amateurs have entertained over the public address system, those attending will play cards and other games. Mrs. Percy Fullinwider will be the accompanist for the singers and instrumentalists in the show.

The amateur night program is being arranged by the activities committee from the Masons and will be one of several entertainment events which will be given this year. Richard Drabich is chairman of the committee, John Q. Hansen, treasurer, and E. M. Garrow, secretary.

Mrs. Edward Deichen will be in charge of the kitchen and Mrs. Percy Widsten of the dining room. Charles Maas is directing the ticket sales and Al Nitz will look after the public address equipment. Members of the committee said yesterday that considerable interest has been shown in the amateur contest and that a large crowd is expected to follow the Clintonville performers here.

Committee Meets to Plan Thanksgiving Baskets for Needy

Plans for the distribution of Thanksgiving baskets to deserving families next week will be discussed at a meeting of the Girls' association committee today. About 25 families will be distributed under the direction of Miss Helen Gilman and in cooperation with Appleton welfare groups.

Refuse to Include 2 Dairy Proposals In New Farm Bill

Wisconsin Representatives Regret Elimination of Amendments

Washington (AP)—Wisconsin representatives expressed disappointment today at the house agriculture committee's refusal to incorporate in proposed new farm legislation two proposals designed to safeguard dairy farmers.

They indicated, however, they hoped for success for a third amendment—to prohibit imports of dairy products unless they emanated from the tuberculosis-free herds—despite opposition of the agriculture department.

Representatives Gerald Boileau, Wausau, and Harry Southoff, Madison, as well as other members of the state's delegation, said they regarded the two rejected amendments as vitally important to the dairy industry.

One would have prohibited use for dairy purposes of lands retired from production of major crops under the soil conservation program. The other was aimed at importations of dairy products from countries with lower production costs than those in the United States.

Would Limit Imports

House members said approval of the amendment requiring imported dairy products to come from tested herds virtually would bar dairy imports since few foreign producers could meet such a requirement.

Absence of strong dairy provisions in new farm bills was expected to evoke strenuous efforts to amend the measures on the floor, led in the house by Wisconsin Progressives and Minnesota Republicans.

Frazier and Senator F. Ryan Duffy, Wisconsin, have been informed by Paul Weis, treasurer of the Wisconsin Cooperative Milk Pool, Madison, that farmers generally agree with Frazier's ideas on cost of production for the farmer.

Weis' Letter

"I have persistently contended that until the farmer obtains a price for his product based on a fair average cost of production, neither he, the farmer, nor the entire national economy will ever be brought into a reasonable stage of stability, as far as it can ever be brought to such a stage," Weis wrote Senator Frazier.

"The only reason the farmers in your recent hearings were so timid and reluctant to express themselves on this point is because through the land grant college faculties to extension workers and county agricultural agents, they have been over-awed with the supposed impractical nature of establishing cost of production figures, and their wide variance in different localities."

Can Determine Costs

"There is as you and I know just as wide a variance in manufacturing, mining, oil producing, and other branches of business as there is in farm production and it is no more difficult to arrive at a fair average production cost by regions for agricultural products than it is to arrive at other costs. The reason for the reluctance of officials to advance the welfare of agriculture, to establish cost of production figures is because such figures would show such startling surprise in prices which the farmers should get in comparison to what they receive, and in comparison with so-called parity prices that the resulting awakening of those entrusted with their welfare would cause them to be tarred and feathered by the scores."

"If congress desires to mitigate depressions and disastrous recurrences of violent business cycles, a fair average cost of production price and finances on the basis of the Frazier amendment are the only two things that will bring the desired results as nearly as it is humanly possible to obtain them."

John J. Slocum, Wausau, Wis., assumed his duties this week as assistant secretary to Senator Duffy, Slocum, former chief clerk of the Wisconsin assembly, also had been secretary of the Wisconsin State Democratic Central committee.

Bernice, 7-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Driessen, Little Chute, submitted to an operation at St. Elizabeth Hospital Wednesday. Her condition is reported as favorable.

Dog Lovers Plan To Organize Fox River Kennel Club

Invite Pet Owners to Attend Meeting Tonight

Dog lovers interested in forming a Fox River Valley Kennel club to affiliate with the American Kennel club will meet this evening at Krull's Pet shop, 512 W. College avenue. Anyone interested may attend the meeting.

Otis Hayes, Neenah, was chosen general chairman and men to represent the various valley cities were named at a meeting last week at Neenah.

Dog breeders and fanciers within a radius of 60 miles of Appleton are working hard to make the club a success. The object of the club is to promote a better knowledge and understanding of dogs and to sponsor an annual dog show.

It is planned to hold a puppy and sanctioned match this winter in each of the cities in the valley represented. When the club is organized, it is planned to fall in line with Milwaukee, Madison, Wausau and LaCrosse groups. It is believed that such a circuit would draw most of the professional as well as amateur handlers in the country to Wisconsin dog shows.

Noted dog owners and authorities would be attracted to this part of the state as well as well known dog writers, organizers believe. Representing Appleton at previous meetings were Mrs. Chester Clow, O. Krull, Ben Wadsworth, Mrs. Walter Wiechert, Mrs. John Wenneham, H. Brautigam and Dr. L. H. Dillion.

In next year's budget, Supervisor Esler also was opposed to floating a bond issue and said a grant should be made only if the money is spent on improving the present highway instead of relocating it.

Urging the appropriation, Supervisor Long, Appleton, said there was evidence that a great share of the residents in the county want the new road. The state money is available and the program should be carried out, he said.

"Large sums are appropriated for farm-to-market roads," he said, "but whenever the city of Appleton asks for anything there is talk of costs and expenses."

Speaks for Grant

Alderman Gustave Keller said that Appleton is part of the county so that when the city is helped the county also is benefited. The new road would attract transients and tourists who would spend money in the city, he said in speaking against deferment. Supervisor Jacobs, Appleton, also was opposed to postponing action.

Voting against the grant were Supervisors Black, Blake, Black, Conradt, Conlon, Dempsey, Diedrick, Esler, Falk, Genske, Schmidt, Grunwaldt, Gunderson, Konrad, Kreutzberg, Kreutzman, Krueger, Lang, Mueller, O'Connor, Reichel, Rogers, Vande Yacht, Williams and Zutiches.

Those in favor were Supervisors Bettendorf, Garvey, Jacobs, Lathrop, Long, Mayer, McDaniel, Muenster, Otis, Pribnow, Schaefer, Scheurle, Steenis, Wichmann, Zerbel and Mack.

NEW JELLY CLEARS STUFFED-UP NOSE LIKE MAGIC

Contains Medications Prescribed by Big City Specialists. Carries Way Back into Nose for More Thorough Relief.

If you've got a mean head cold, or catarrh, and your nose feels all "stuffed up," don't waste your time with make-shifts. Get real relief—quick and long-lasting—that the new Listerine Nose Jelly offers. Its basic medicines are exactly those used by big city specialists.

Users say Listerine Nose Jelly mediates more thoroughly than drops, because it reaches further back in the nose and stays there longer, allowing the medicine a chance to work longer in the affected area. It mediates more thoroughly than oily liniments because it gets better contact with inflamed areas and swollen passages that keep pus, ferms and mucus from being discharged.

Listerine Nose Jelly mixes and becomes a part of Nature's nasal secretions, which are watery in character. Therefore it spreads farther and gets wider contact, reducing the swelling, opening up the passages, relieving inflammation, and shooting fresh aromatics up to the nose to clear the head. Don't suffer. Get Listerine Nose Jelly from your druggist, now Lambert Pharmaceutical Company, St. Louis, Mo.

BY WALTER LIPPMAN

Footnote to a Roosevelt Biography

Nor for more than two years, not since he was so annoyed by what the supreme court had to say about the N. R. A., has Mr. Roosevelt adopted such a conciliatory tone as he did in his message on Monday. On almost all important occasions for about thirty months Mr. Roosevelt has portrayed himself as the champion of the exploited masses in a struggle against their oppressors. He has seemed to say that his personal enemies were the public's enemies, and only too often he has let it appear as if he were more determined to triumph over his enemies than to attain his social objectives.

The message on Monday was written in a cooler, calmer and less vindictive mood. There is not a phrase in it which implies that Mr. Roosevelt himself is peculiarly inspired and that to disagree with him is a form of moral turpitude. Whatever may come of his specific promises and proposals, Mr. Roosevelt has yielded once more to the more tolerant and impersonal side of his character. With a humility which he has rarely exhibited since the great first days of his Administration, he speaks again as one seeking to persuade his opponent rather than as a thwarted man defiantly trying to overawe them.

Many Wondering If Good Will Is Authentic

It is natural enough that many who read his message, particularly those who are nursing their wounds, should be asking whether this relapse into good will is authentic or is only a tactical maneuver made necessary by the business recession. Put to some public men, this would be a real question in a leader like Lenin, for example, it was probably true that his changes of policy were more or less deliberately calculated maneuvers. For Lenin had a rigidly dogmatic and coherent idea of what he was trying to do, and when he yielded to circumstances, he supposed himself to be making a purely temporary and strategic retreat.

But Mr. Roosevelt is not in the least like Lenin; if there is one thing he does not possess, it is a dogmatic and coherent philosophy. He has consistent sympathies with the poor and perhaps more or less fixed antipathies against certain kinds of rich men, particularly against the more newly rich ones. Mr. Roosevelt does not, however, have a definite, a closely reasoned and deeply held, social philosophy. He has never acquired one and probably would not like it if he had. He did not begin to bother his head greatly about the fundamental difficulties of modern civilization until about 1930. Before that he was predominantly an ardently regular Democratic partisan with a strong hankering to be on the side of the angels.

Sincere In Attitudes Which Seem Contrary

Since 1930 he has, of course, been a very busy man, and he himself would not doubt readily admit that he has been quite unable to go very thoroughly into the scientific foundations of the general ideas which he has espoused. Mr. Roosevelt has had to formulate his ideas by listening to his visitors, selecting out of what they said, and out of what he thought they had said, those ideas which seemed most plausible when he remembered them later.

And so because he does not have a consistent and systematic theory of what he is doing, there is no one asking whether he is the more "sincere" when he attacks his opponents as economic royalists or when he treats them as fellow citizens. He is no doubt equally sincere in both attitudes. For in the back of his mind there are incompatible ideas which make either attitude seem eminently reasonable.

Contradictory Lines Appear In Address

The message of Monday is a particularly interesting contribution to Mr. Roosevelt's biography because the two main but contradictory lines of his thought are so innocently and sincerely placed side by side.

In the first half of the message Mr. Roosevelt is inspired by the theory that the success of his reforms "depends on a wider distribution of an immensely enlarged national income." In so far as he lets this theory possess him, he is bound to be conciliatory to capital and interested in encouraging the normal functions of the capitalist system. But in the second half of the message, in discussing farm and labor legislation, the idea that he must have an immensely enlarged national income is superseded by the idea that the government must "maintain purchasing power" by preventing "overproduction" and by fixing wages.

Speeches Reveal Which Attitude Is Dominant

When this second idea is dominant in his mind, Mr. Roosevelt feels it to be rational to lead a crusade against the economic royalists. Thus in his second inaugural, as he dedicated himself to the one-third who are ill-housed, ill-clad, ill-nourished, he entirely forgot to say that they could be well-housed, well-clad and well-nourished only if the national income were immensely enlarged. Having forgotten to say it, the only inference was that the poor could be enriched by waging a class struggle, and that precisely is what his left-wing supporters thought he meant.

But when the first idea is dominant, and Mr. Roosevelt remembers that the wealth has yet to be produced which would radically improve the American standard of life, he writes a message like that of Monday, suppresses the idea of class struggle and listens to those among his advisers who really would like to see private enterprise flourish.

Requirements of Two Objectives are Different

The impression of instability which he gives even to his friendliest supporters arises almost certainly from the fact that he has never thought out clearly in his own mind whether he believes in "a wider distribution of an immensely enlarged national income" or in government intervention "to maintain wage income and the purchasing power of the nation." Probably he would argue that the two notions are quite consistent. But in fact they are not consistent. For the one requires the increased production of wealth, whereas the other calls for the limiting of production and produces a struggle over the distribution of the resulting scarcity.

The purchasing power theory is in practice nothing but an effort to give government support to certain favored groups in order that they may be able to exact higher prices from the rest of the people. If agricultural prices are forced upward, the higher prices must be paid for by the consumer. If wages are forced upward by law, they are paid by those workers who cannot be employed at those wages or by the whole population in the form of relief.

Now, of course, Mr. Roosevelt is not the inventor of this theory, nor is he the first to practice it. It is the underlying theory of the Republican tariff and of the whole price-fixing movement by big business combinations. All that Mr. Roosevelt has done is to apply a bad theory for the supposed benefit of those classes who have hitherto been its chief victims, and perhaps the worst that can be said of the New Deal is that it has taught every one to think like an Old Guard Republican. It has persuaded agriculture, labor and the humanitarian reformers to adopt the fallacies of the protectionists and the monopolists.

Until Mr. Roosevelt manages to clarify his own thinking on these basic principles, he will probably continue to talk like a liberal one day and like a collectivist the next day, depending on which of his fundamentally incompatible ideas is at the time in the ascendant.

Pegler Wonders if his Town Now Has Lady Bars

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—On the night that the three saloons were voted out of our little town, long before the Eighteenth amendment, bonfires burned on the lot where the W.C.T.U. drinking fountain stood, and the Rev. Mr. McKenzie, the Methodist minister who had led the crusade, thanked almighty God that our youth would never know the taste of rum. Mr. Sampson, the victorious candidate for mayor, broke the head out of a barrel of apples which he passed around to the adults in the town hall and provided a big wooden pal of groovy candy for the kids. In other times it had been the custom of newly elected or re-elected mayors to lead a procession to one of the three saloons. But this was the beginning of a new era.

Unhappily, in the heat of the campaign it had come to light that the few Catholics in town had no religious conviction against alcoholic beverages as such and even held it to be no sin for a man or, yes, even a woman to drink in moderation—even whisky. Holding liquor to be an abomination and the demon rum to be an actual devil, the Protestants, and particularly the Methodists, felt that they had no choice but to regard the Catholics with suspicion, and the blessing of the referendum was mitigated somewhat by this and the answering resentment.

It had been established among the kids in the school yard that anyone whose father got drunk—the words "light," "plastered" and "cock-eyed" were not then used in this sense—was a social inferior, and now, by exaggerated inference, not only the fathers but even the mothers of the Catholic kids were at least potential drunkards. It made a very unpleasant situation.

Social Stigma Was As Strong Deterrent

It seems strange now that they took their liquor evil of those days so grimly, because actually the social stigma of drunkenness, extending even to the children of the offender, was a strong deterrent.

My first knowledge of the problem of the drunken mother came in London, where the ladies of the lower orders, forbidden to take their children into the bars, after some futile protest hit upon the idea of parking them outside, a dozen or more infants in charge of one little girl, while they spent the afternoon guzzling gin. It seemed awful at the time, but it was no different, really, from the present American practice of leaving the children at home in charge of the servants or in school out of mischief while the ladies of the upper classes go crawling in the afternoon. No doubt about it, some of the girls do get thoroughly bottled when they go out larking, but there is nothing furtive about it, for they are just as likely to get tight at home in the presence of the bairns. The daddies, too. And many of them are smalltowners, too.

Now Lots of Children See Their Folks Blotto

But, although this would have been horrible in our little town then, it was routine in our big cities now, and I suppose in our signal stons, too. I can't think of many children of my personal acquaintance who have not seen their fathers and mothers blotto now and again, but none of them ever seems to be humiliated. Amused, yes.

I believe there was an instinct to propitiate the future in my early sympathy for the poor bums in our town jug in the throes of hangover. It was a small brick jug with two cells and no water, and when the sun hit them in the morning the bums would begin to yell "hoo-oo! hoo-oo!" We lived nearby, and I would put a board up against the outside wall and peer in the barred window at men with cracked, blue lips with white, salty crust on them, begging for something to drink—even water. I couldn't get a cup between the bars, but my mother also

HAPPY VALLEY PUPILS MAKE INDIAN EXHIBIT

To have proper knowledge of the history of Wisconsin and Outagamie county one must know of Indians and their part in it. Pupils of the Happy Valley school, town of Greenville, have found. In connection with their study they have carried out an Indian project. Above is shown some of the pupils dressed in Indian garb with their exhibit. Reading left to right are Rita Sommers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sommers; June Beschta, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Beschta; Betty Running, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tollock; Marion Lueck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lueck; Nora Joh Burger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Burger; Leann Sommers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sommers; Junior Jennerjohn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Jennerjohn; Harold Strey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Strey; LeRoy Burger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Burger; and Eric Jack, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Jack. Rural Pupils of County Make Study of Indians

Outagamie county lands are no longer trod by bow-and-arrow hunters of the historic Outagamie, Winnebago and Oneida Indian tribes, and instead of seeing hunters clothed in soft cured-skin moccasins and breeches school children now see flannel-clothed men with modern equipped guns.

However, the romance of the old Indian life as it was known in these parts about a hundred years ago is kept alive through study projects being carried out in the country rural schools. Indian relics such as arrow-heads, pottery, blankets and tools saved or found through the years are dug from store-rooms and attics and brought to the school to form interesting displays.

Under the project, pupils make miniature replicas of the different types of Indian homes, such as the tepee, log houses, hogans and wigwags. In connection with the projects the pupils study Indian life and habits and make booklets on them.

The Indian exhibits of the various rural schools in the county have been exceptionally well carried out this fall, according to the supervising teachers.

Typical Project
Typical of the projects is the one at the Happy Valley school, town of Greenville. The study and making of the Indian exhibit were under the supervision of Miss Pearl Rohm, teacher.

The Indian booklets made by the third and fourth grade pupils contain stories of the early American Indian tribes with pictures of them and their home life. The students made a collection of arrow heads, Indian beads, moccasins and tomahawks.

One large bulletin board was used to show Indian life. Indian sketches were made free hand in the art classes. Posters were made of Hiawatha.

A sandtable, showing the early settlers and Indians of the plains, also was correlated with the project. In the upper grades the history of Wisconsin was studied.

An American pageant will be presented at the monthly meeting of the school literary society Friday afternoon. The seventh and eighth grades will present a short original play entitled, "The First Thanksgiving."

WAR REFERENDUM

Senator LaFollette has put in the best form so far the proposal of a war referendum for America.

That is to say the senator has been more practical than those who have heretofore supported the main idea because he has foreseen and provided for the danger were marauding armies to be landed any place in North America.

This country must not enmesh itself in a net of disaster by tying its hands and feet through the provisions of a war referendum while potent enemies might be piling vast armies into Canada or Mexico. Nor is the example wholly without fact to support it.

About 15 years ago Japan approached Mexico for the purpose of obtaining a substantial area on Mexico's west coast for colonization. Only through the patient work and quick wit of Ambassador Dwight Morrow—who died before the Neighborly Policy was born—was this Japanese movement, so fraught with evil consequences to America, thwarted and finally abandoned.

It is not impossible that such a treaty might some day succeed. All that it requires is a vengeful Mexican ruler. And most Mexican rulers have considered those who offered bribes as good fellows.

So it is clear that any constitutional amendment limiting America to warlike action only when its own soil is invaded would be the most foolhardy of acts. Under its terms an enemy whose design was known and whose purpose was plain could keep its line of communications open while it landed an army of 5 to 10 million men to either side of us and we couldn't do a thing.

That very fact should make us hesitate further with the LaFollette proposal. It isn't even now broad enough. And we will do well to remember that the world is shrinking every day since the means of transportation have become so swift and plentiful.

The recent history of Brazil should suggest to Senator LaFollette the high desirability of keeping America more foot loose and free to act on sudden necessity, a condition that would not exist under a war referendum.

Perhaps the new movement in Brazil so sweetly termed "the protection of democracy" is just another phase of an old South American custom. Certainly Brazil hasn't had anything approaching democracy in its existence. It might be well to remember, too, that just about 95 percent of all South American territory is now under the hands of dictators or governments with a strong dictatorial leaning.

Such situations make fertile soil for various forms of Fascism. And the problem becomes all the more serious when we view the long stream of hundreds of thousands of Italians and Germans that have migrated there since the war.

We would not stop to argue whether Brazil is Fascist or smiles upon the Nazis. That would be wasted time. Clearly however it is not democratic. Just as clearly it is under the heel of a tyrant. Anything can happen in such a country if the agents of smarter Fascist powers go to work.

If America knows its business it will still continue to ban from the Western Hemisphere all forms of European or Asiatic aggression. To do so it should have a right to move an army under an act of congress anywhere in the Western Hemisphere.

Why did America buy Florida? It wanted peace and it knew that peace was in danger when it dealt with Spanish royalty.

Why did America make the great Louisiana purchase? It knew—and this was 135 years ago—that French political schemings, whether Communist or Bonapartist, were not consistent with the tranquil life of wholesome work and construction the American people craved.

Why did America buy Alaska from Russia in 1867? Again it was actuated by the purpose of keeping out of this great Western Hemisphere the autocrats who moved armies and had given life or death with changing moods.

Let it be remembered that when we made these extensive purchases from Spain, France and Russia we had no need for them. Their apparent uselessness to us was so evident that the people of the time complained bitterly against their rulers for making the purchases.

But the rulers were statesmen. They knew what they were about.

And if we handle this matter of war in the same high-minded manner we will minimize our participation without handcuffing ourselves to the delight of a malignant foe.

AN IMPOSITION ON THE IRISH

The customs guards at New York did a fine piece of work for the Irish recently when they seized 240,000 lottery tickets of the Monte Carlo Sweepstakes, a pretty little gambling venture built around the Grand Prix de Nice which is to be run next March.

The Irish have a monopoly on America with their sweepstakes. Only impudent upstarts, or some of the frayed gentility like Monte Carlo, would have the brazen affrontery to stick their long Gaulic noses into the Irish sinecure.

It is true that Monte Carlo tried to be modest. She only sought to take about $360,000 out of the country on her introductory bid for sweepstakes money. But a great principle is at stake beyond the amount of money, and a question of precedence since the Irish came so early with their plan and did the job so well.

Monte Carlo, for one that has had so much experience in gambling, evidenced crude methods at the pier, failed to place thousand dollar bills in the correct palms and had its packages of tickets confiscated by an indignant set of officials whose eyes blazed at the bungling numskulls who tried to put it over. It takes the country back again to prohibition days when the man who knew the ropes, and how to cover them with greenbacks, never had the least difficulty with baggage full of booze excepting to get men strong enough to carry it. But when some timid soul who didn't know his way about forgot the essentials a great uproar was made as he was pilloried, fined $5 for every bottle, however small, and saw his foreign treasures confiscated before his eyes.

We hope the Monte Carlo incident will be a lesson to the world. Since we have only plowed back something like 7 millions into the Irish hospitals no more sweepstakes are to be permitted until Ireland gets its fill. Whether the Irish will be satisfied with 50 or 500 millions we know not but finders are keepers and they came first.

So wonderful is America in this respect that it feeds the Irish ahead of its own.

The Left in our political world seems to have no terminus. It is a peculiar situation because the Right has a definite terminal point, ending with autocracy.

Our Communists who seemed to think they were the extreme fringe of the Left are now battling with the Anarchists who denounce the Communists as pikers and "betrayers of the workers."

How often the workers have been betrayed by someone!

These anarchists, who call themselves Anarchist Federation of America, met recently at Union Square in New York and denounced the Communists as cutthroats for their "underhanded double dealing."

But the Anarchists need not think they can rest secure on the outer fringe of the Left. Before long we will have some nihilists and they will expose the anarchists for their betrayal of the workers.

And all these resolutions of denunciation are true, which is a fact that may surprise.

NIMBLE ACTION

Making up to Mayor LaGuardia has very evidently become a major New Deal objective. The president's interruption of his return journey to Washington to have a talk with the mayor, Mr. Farley's presence at the conference, the resignation of Assistant Attorney General Charles A. Schneider all point to a very strong desire on the part of both the federal and state administrations to efface the memory of their opposition in the campaign. The haste of the effort has its ludicrous side; also, considering Tammany's plight, it is a little heartless.

The poor Tiger, left lying in a corner, must make the best of desecration as well as defeat. Pretty tough, even for an organization that toyed with the Copeland candidacy!

No doubt the size of the American Labor party's vote goes far to explain the phenomenon, though it accounted for much less than the Republican tally in the civic uprising. It came, however, from the camp which is the special object of New Deal cultivation and hence suggested propitiation before the setting of another sun. So we have been treated to as nimble a performance of band-wagon hopping as history affords.

Schneider, of course, is the district leader whom Mr. Dewey accused of defending a racketeer charged with murder and collecting his fee from the racket, though a sworn officer of the law at the time. One remembers his defiant reply and his threat to sue Mr. Dewey for libel. His sudden resignation to Attorney General Bennett seems sufficient comment with respect both to the charge and to Mr. Bennett's anxiety, prompted in all likelihood by the governor, to sever the embarrassing association. Meanwhile there is talk of repentance in Albany in the matter of District Attorney Geaghan, of Brooklyn, whitewashed last year by the governor after the Drunkman murder investigation. A strong hint comes of an early change in the office. Poor Schneider is probably not the last of the sacrifices to the new piety in high places.—New York Herald Tribune.

I TAKE THE DAY OFF

Some folks talk so much about the big things they are going to do that they never get time to do even the small things.

It takes a brave man to admire a girl who has no other admirers.

Mother says getting married is a serious thing, but daughter thinks it's lots more serious not to.

Love at first sight is possible, but it often doesn't survive the second look.

No matter how much the male sex may advocate sensible footwear for women, it takes the girl with the spike-heeled shoes to walk all over a man.

—MRS. G.W.

I am extra proud of Mrs. G.W. today. Extra, because I heard an old gag pulled on first, Al Jolson's program and then on Al Pearce's ("watch the fun go by") half hour immediately following Wednesday night. Both are on CBS, and on each they dragged out the dusty one about a bachelor is a man who never made the same mistake once. Yes, I am extra proud of Mrs. G.W.

And to think that those radio script writers get paid lots of money for such stuff.

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS DEPT.

Jonah:

The usual drab proceedings of the city council rose to brilliant heights last evening (Wednesday) as the council toyed with the idea of going literary. Members were regaled with a review of the story "A Tale of Two Cities (Sevens)," a hollow tragedy. Many had misgivings that the plot was lifted from "It Can't Happen Here" but as the review wore on, it developed that it was an original plot "It Must Not Happen Here." The gist of it all was that one sewer "couldn't take it."

The big scent from the First ward was gradually revealed by the Sage of the Second ward. The story was brought to a happy ending by the hero, Frankie Baritz.

—His Honor's Henchman

I think all of us need to take a keener interest in civic affairs, don't you think so? I think so.

Particularly in projects like parking in the center of the three and four hundred block of West College avenue. People never were very tidy parkers in this city, and driving along the stretch of pavement just mentioned is something like dodging through a parking lot. As far as some drivers are concerned, the center extends all the way to the curb.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

THOSE GENES OF GEORGE'S

One reader will not let us forget the genes in the discussion of heredity, eugenics or genetics. He stands right up where everybody can see him and, in resonant tones, tosses his query at us:

"If I have read my books aright, the child, call him George, receives at birth the genes which he in turn will transmit. But these genes, carrying the factors of heredity of George's line are signed, sealed and delivered when George gets them. Nothing that George does during his lifetime affects in any way the genes he is carrying. Therefore George's children inherited only the characteristics of the line prior to George. The conduct of George can thus affect, through the genes, only the grandchildren. If this is correct, no man is the son of his parents but is the descendant of his grandparents and the rest of the line all the way back, in respect to inherited characteristics."

In other words, one must be born good, bad or indifferent in order to achieve goodness, badness or indifference. Environment, training, education, culture make no difference at all, only birth counts. If George was a bad egg George is a bad egg.

The chief fault with this theory of heredity is that it excludes altogether the possibility of the inheritance of acquired characters, and if that possibility is denied, then we must dismiss the notion of evolution and the general belief in the influence of environment.

Here again the experiment of Castle and Phillips applies. They removed the ovaries from an albino guinea pig just attaining maturity, and grafted into the albino pig's body other ovaries obtained from a young black guinea-pig. The albino with the grafted ovaries was then mated with a male albino. Albino guinea-pigs invariably bear only albino young. In this case, however, there were three litters.

Six individuals, and every one of the young guinea-pigs was black. The young from a cross between black and albino guinea-pigs are invariably black, though if these black guinea-pigs of the first generation mate, three-fourths of their young will be black and one-fourth albino or white. This would seem to strengthen the theory of the unalterable genes.

On the other hand, it is certain that poisons in the blood stream, or nutritional deficiencies, or diseases, injure or weaken the germinal cells, the germ-plasm in the ovaries or the testes, so that reproductive power is impaired, or the offspring will be puny, low in vitality, weak in one way or another even if not actually diseased. It is as reasonable to assume that factors in the blood, chemical substances, ductless gland hormones, may modify the character of the genes in the germ-plasm and so account, in a measure, for the inheritance of acquired characters and the effect of environment on evolution.

Anyway, it is all conjectural and every student of heredity may choose the school of thought he prefers. I think perhaps father and mother contribute mainly environment, but our grandfathers, grandmothers and their grandfathers and grandmothers are the chief determinants of George's characteristics.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Wandering Kidney
Have had kidney trouble sixteen years, no bad results other than (symptom that may be due to anxiety alone). Is there any other remedy than surgery? (H. R. G.)

Answer—Hundreds of individuals have loose, movable, floating, wandering, fallen kidney and are unaware of it—and suffer no symptoms until they are made aware of it. Why get excited about it after sixteen years? Just acquire or keep what surplus fat you can, and do some moderate belly exercise every day.

Your Birthday

"SCORPIO"

If November 20 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:15 a. m. to 1:15 p. m., from 3:15 to 5:15 p. m., and from 7:15 to 9:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 9:15 to 11:15 a. m., from 5:15 to 7:15 p. m., and from 9:15 to 11:15 p. m.

There may be many temptations this day, which, if given in to, will result in a great deal of trouble. The average person's power of resistance will give way to flattery, greed or a desire to please someone. Under the guise of humility, deception may be successfully practiced this day, so be on the alert for hypocrisy. It will pay you to be cheerful, for grouchy dispositions will be responsible for many plans, involving social activities, going wrong. Long-winded people will be decidedly unpopular, particularly if they are in a conference. Pithy remarks, tinged with humor, will carry more weight than will ponderously thought-out ones. Married and engaged couples, as well as those planning to become so, be thrice as alert to find this an auspicious day to get any reasonable request granted.

If a woman and November 20 is your birthday, your greatest fault may be a tendency to put off making important decisions. You probably have the happy faculty of expressing yourself well. Your gestures and carriage are apt to be very graceful. You will, perhaps, have many admirers. This requires your being careful that vanity does not interfere with your popularity. You should take an interest in church work, for religion can add tremendously to your happiness. Through work of an executive nature, interior decorating, restaurant, gift shop, or beauty parlor management, writing, acting or selling you may prevent the wolf from coming to your door. If you play the matrimonial game, as it should be played you will be fortunate.

The child born on November 20, is usually an entertaining, rollicking youngster with an exceptionally good mind. By the time it reaches its majority it will realize the importance of recognizing the responsibilities of life, and will settle down to good hard work, and get results.

If a man and November 20 is your natal day, the mastering of a quick temper or a dictatorial manner, may be necessary before you make the progress you should. Geology, botany, engineering, newspaper or magazine work, dentistry or some commercial line of activity may enable you to become financially successful.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington — Keen disappointment was felt by some of labor's supporters in congress that the president did not say in his message to the special session that while steps must be taken to offset the recession, the gains made for labor in the past five years should not be sacrificed.

The Wagner labor relations act already has been under fire by industrial groups and segments of labor. The American Federation of Labor at its recent Denver convention proposed amending the act to gain increased recognition of old-line craft unions. The A. F. of L. has contended that the performance of the labor board has always leaned toward the CIO headed by John L. Lewis.

Franker of the bill have argued such revision would invite tinkering which might weaken it.

Soft Words For Business

Industrial groups have demanded for employers the same right of appeal to the board as is now enjoyed only by labor. Labor's answer is that industrial groups already have, or practice, all the privileges granted labor in the Wagner act and that revision to give employers equal rights of appeal to the board would nullify its value to labor.

Already amendments proposing revisions have been introduced in congress.

The president's message was so conciliatory toward business that it appeared to some of labor's decisive swing to the right. Not in his five years has he used such soft words as were contained in the message to persuade business to come forward now and pull the country back from the brink of another depression.

It was those words which excited some of his labor-minded followers in congress to fear he would sacrifice overmuch of labor's gains to get the wheels of business rolling faster.

When's War War?

The new session will hear a thorough-going debate over the war the state department has played its hand in the Chinese-Japanese conflict. Senator Nye, blew in from the steps of North Dakota hoping someone would introduce a resolution declaring that a state of war existed between Japan and China. So far, the President has refused to do this with the result that the neutrality act has never been put into effect. Senator Nye believes the president has been frightfully remiss in this respect but he was not prepared to put in the resolution himself until he had consulted some of his neutrality-minded pals.

In the 90 days since congress adjourned last August, Nye has delivered 57 speeches of indignation over the President's failure to invoke the neutrality act embargo on the war in China. That is about one speech every 40 hours—a fair gait.

Just what might happen if congress should pass a resolution recognizing a state of war in the orient presents exciting possibilities. The constitution gives the president the honor role in the opera of international affairs for congress to take the initiative would be as novel as having a spearman in a Wagnerian opera throw down his gear, shove the leather-jerked Siegfried aside and begin to sing his role. Would such a resolution bring the arms embargo into operation despite the president?

Passage of such a resolution might put the president to the necessity of appealing to the supreme court for protection of his own constitutional rights. That, too, would be interesting.

MAN GETS PENNY BACK

Telephoning from a booth, an East Wemyss, Scotland, man was told by the operator to put five pennies in the box. Having no pennies he deposited a six-pence. The operator asked the man's name and address, and a few days later he received a letter from the manager of the telephone station in Edinburgh, enclosing a penny stamp.

TRICKS RESTRICTED

Magicians, clowns and other vaudeville performers of Germany, forbidden by the Reich's Theatre Chamber in Berlin to explain how their tricks are done, may have to tell why others are not performed. The Chamber has ordered the entertainers not to use eggs, milk or other edibles for their tricks or jokes. The order is intended to aid the Four Year Plan to render Germany self-sufficient in its food supply.

Hollywood News And Gossip

BY ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood — One of the best pictures of this year was "Make Way for Tomorrow," a serious and artistic study of conflict between age and youth. It was, sadly, a box-office failure, through no fault of the man who made it.

Now Leo McCarey has made another, equally artistic, but a comedy — and it should more than atone for losses theaters may have suffered on his serious effort. "The Awful Truth" looks sure to be one of the big cash winners of the year.

It has names (which "Make Way for Tomorrow" lacked) in Irene Dunne and Cary Grant, and it has writing, dialogue, and direction to serve as models. The story concerns a young couple who get a divorce, more through pique than anger, and their subsequent efforts to scotch the romances each turns to for consolation. In love with each other all the time, they battle subtly, broadly, fairly and unfairly through reel after delightful reel, evoking comedy situations right and left, and yet maintaining a human quality which has become rare in this era of modernized slapstick.

Miss Dunne's performance is her best, and Cary Grant, the favorite young character actor, sets a new pace for himself. Ralph Bellamy as the wealthy Oklahoman, Irene's suitor, is the supporting stand-out, with Alexander D'Arcy, Cecil Cunningham, Joyce Compton, Molly Lamont and Esther Dale maintaining the generally superior standard of the whole production.

Leslie Howard as Comedian Previewishly speaking, this has been laugh week in Hollywood. Comedy has held the screen alone. Another sure hit is "Stand-In," the story of the banker who came to Hollywood to straighten out a movie studio.

Adapted liberally from the Clarence Buddington Kelland story, "Stand-In's" comedy springs generously from the famed foibles of Hollywood in juxtaposition to the serious, mathematical point of view of the New York banker.

Atterbury Dodd (Leslie Howard) comes to Hollywood convinced that mathematics can solve any problem, and in the course of foiling a plot to grab control of the studio he learns about such human, un-mathematical things as love.

Joan Blondell is the stand-in who helps with his education. With "The Perfect Specimen" fresh on her list, the girl is going to find herself up there among box-office favorites after this one. Howard forgets about Romeo and Hamlet for a perfect comedy characterization, and Humphrey Bogart is forceful as the producer Quintain. Alan Mowbray's caricature of a foreign director is one of the highlights. Tay Garnett directed.

"Breakfast for Two" is funny, but not so funny as it might have been with other stars. Barbara Stanwyck and Herbert Marshall seemed miscast in this yarn about a rich western girl who tries to save an old shipping business for the ne'er-do-well son who has let it go to the sea-dogs.

College Players Give Effective Performance Of Andre Obey's 'Noah'

BY VIOLA HELLERMANN

ALTHOUGH the play was a difficult one, a group of Lawrence college students did an excellent job of acting last night in Andre Obey's "Noah," produced at Lawrence Memorial chapel by the Sunset Players. The play will be repeated at 8:20 tonight.

Reminiscent of the treatment which "The Green Pastures" gave to a Biblical theme, "Noah" is a modern interpretation of the well-known story of the flood. Its characters speak in the vernacular of today, Noah's sons calling him familiarly Pop.

Everett Bauman's portrayal of Noah was easily the high light of the play. He was an old but sprightly Noah on intimate terms with his God, talking over with him all his problems, even the little matter of putting a rudder on the ark. The attentive silence with which the audience heard his monologue in the last act was a deserved compliment. In that scene, deserted by his children, attacked and almost killed by one of the animals he had befriended on the ark, his wife dying, Noah turns to his God again, declares he has given up trying to understand him but will continue to follow him to the end.

Betty Anne Johnson, as Noah's wife, comes a close second in acting honors. Her most difficult part also came in the last act when, after having stood by her husband faithfully through the flood, she becomes deranged when all danger is over.

Probably the noisiest and lustiest group of young folk who have made merry on the chapel stage in a long time are the six who take parts of Noah's three sons and the three orphan girls. John Bodilly, Charles Thompson and Selden Spencer take the parts of the three sons, Clarielle Danielson, Marjorie Wilson and Dorothy Brown portray the three girls, and sing, shout, dance and fight their way through the play with a vigor and enthusiasm that did them credit.

One of the best-liked scenes, judging by the reaction of the audience, was that in which Noah discussed with the animals his family's impatience in the ark and their distrust of him and God. Although the animals had no speaking parts they did a convincing job of showing sympathy by pantomime and a few grunts and growls. Taking the animal parts were Robert Arndt, Spencer Johnson, Ruth Chappelle, Lester Larson, Wesley Perschbaker, Gay Patterson, Ruth Ragland, Jack Wachter and Anne Blakeman. James Morrow takes the part of a wicked man of the village with proper venom.

Erle Volkert, director, and Miss Margaret Hendrickson, assistant, deserve bouquets for the almost professional smoothness with which the play was presented. Both the setting and lighting were effective, and the sound crew should be applauded for some very creditable wind and rain. Music between the acts was furnished by the college orchestra under the direction of Percy Fullinwider.

Women's Union to Sponsor Pageant At Church Sunday

FIRE LADDIES GET HA-HA
Underhill, Portland, England — People laugh when there is a fire in Underhill.

Chief A. J. Jackman, applying for new equipment, revealed why. "Our 1901 model fire cart is very heavy, the springs have gone flat, and its antiquated appearance causes nothing but laughter. 'The streets are so steep we can't move it until all the brigade is present. Even then we are glad to get children hauling on the ropes, too.'"

"That causes more fun and ridicule. And it annoys the firemen." Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles Freiberg, 313 W. Commercial street. Gifts will be exchanged at the party. Fourteen members were present.

3 Women Give Favorite Recipes for Fruit Cake

Fruit cake has achieved a reputation of being one of the tastiest traditions of the Yule season and having about as many "favorite recipes" as anything in the field of baking.

The Post-Crescent herewith presents the first of a series of recipes used by women in Appleton and vicinity and invites others to send in their formulas.

The first recipe is one favored by Miss Mabel Burke, director of the homemaking division of the Appleton Vocational school. It goes like this:

Ingredients, one pound butter, one pound light brown sugar, nine eggs, one pound flour, two teaspoons mace, two teaspoons cinnamon, one teaspoon soda, one-half pound candied fruit, two tablespoons milk, four pounds raisins seeded and finely chopped, one cup almonds, blanched, one cup walnuts, one pound citron, thinly sliced and cut in strips, one-half pound dates. Method, cream the butter, add sugar gradually, and beat thoroughly. Separate yolks from whites of eggs, beat yolks until thick and lemon-colored, beat whites until stiff and dry, and add to first mixture. Then add milk, fruit, nuts, and flour mixed and sifted with mace, cinnamon and soda.

Put in buttered deep pans, cover with buttered paper, steam three hours, and bake 11 hours in slow oven or bake four hours in very slow oven. Rich fruit cake is always more satisfactory when done if the cooking is accomplished by steaming.

This recipe for a Christmas fruit cake comes from Mrs. L. F. Knickerbocker, 849 E. South street.

Ingredients, two cups light brown sugar, two cups butter, 12 eggs four cups flour, one nutmeg grated, one teaspoon soda, one teaspoon allspice, one teaspoon mace, two tablespoons cinnamon, one cup brandy or strong coffee, one-fourth pound candied orange peel, three pounds ounces, nutmeg and cinnamon mixture; 15 eggs, one wine glass brandy or whiskey, one-half pound Jordan almonds, one-half pound glace cherries, one pound dates, one glass red currant jelly.

Method, cream butter, add sugar, add eggs one at a time. Beat well. Prepare fruit, wash and dry thoroughly. Add flour mixed with baking powder, spices and salt to fruit, mix thoroughly. Add nut meat, brandy and jelly. Mix well. Line pans with waxed paper. Steam three hours, bake two hours in slow oven. Makes 16-lb fruit cake.

Marriages in Germany this year numbered more than in the corresponding period of 1936.

RUSS CAVALRY GROWS.
Russia is taking up horsemanship as a preparation for war. Sixty thousand people are learning cavalry riding at riding clubs and circles of the Society for Promotion of Aviation and Chemical Defense. There are more than 200 of these clubs and 4,000 circles. Collective farmers, workers, students and office employees are attending classes on how to take care of horses and their equipment. They are also being taught topography and how to use gas masks. Moscow reports that Russia's crack horsemen, the "Voroshilov Riders," named for the Minister of Defense, now number 10,000.

'Auction of Boy' Features Program At Twin Lakes Council Gathering

Waupaca—More than 200 scouts, their wives and friends gathered from all five counties of the Twin Lakes Council, Boy Scouts of America, for the annual banquet of the council, Thursday evening at Castle hall.

The council comprises Marquette, Winnebago, Waushara, Green Lake and Waupaca counties and nearly every community of these counties has its Boy Scout troop, and men interested in their scouting program were in attendance.

Music was furnished by the Waupaca Troubadours during the dinner, vocalist of the group, Edwin Knudson. Community singing was led by Jimmie Miracle, scoutmaster of Troop 20, Oshkosh.

E. J. Ledvina, Oshkosh, council president, acting as toastmaster, called upon Roy Holly for the invocation. H. B. Hertz called the roll of district chairmen finding each county represented—Waupaca, by Dr. A. M. Christofferson; Waushara, by Red Kayes; Marquette, by Ernest MacNamara; Green Lake, by Norman Drews; and Winnebago, by George Nevitt. With the exception of Marquette, each county shared about equally with its representation of attendants.

Roy Holly conducted the "auction of a boy." Upon the outcome of the sale, depends the success or failure of civilization, said Mr. Holly.

They "bid" for Boy "War" bid $10,000, declaring the need of a boy to fight the battles which greed and selfishness and hatred bring to the world. "Pleasure" bid $20,000, promising everything that will contribute to a aimless, useless life. "Crime" bid $30,000, guaranteeing riches and fame with thrills or rackets to spread throughout the country.

"Business" bid $40,000, standing for real progress with a need of men of vision to lead the world as captains of industry. "Education" bid $80,000, for without that business, labor and the professions could not get far with the boy. "Homelife" bid $90,000 with its need of the boy for fatherhood to lay the foundation for education and life in the community. The "Church" with its bid of $60,000 promised a program of idealism and service. The boy was sold to "Scouting" with its bid of $1,000,000—scouting, which represents the constructive and positive forces in our community, according to the auctioneer. Realizing full well that society cannot continue without men of character, scouting offers the boy opportunity to choose his life's work, striving to fit him for this work, with education, and habits of character that will make him a happy and honored member of society, realizing also that no money can buy the boy's possibilities. Mr. Holly said. Ward Rudersdorf, Boy Scout, represented the "boy for sale."

The nominating committee's report was accepted at this time and the following will assume their duties for the ensuing year: president, E. J. Ledvina, Oshkosh; treasurer, Edward Helsing, Oshkosh; secretary, H. B. Hertz, Oshkosh; commissioner, George P. Nevitt, Oshkosh; executive vice president, Roy Holly; chairman of camping committee, Ellyn Nelson, Oshkosh. The treasurer becomes the chairman of the finance committee, and each district chairman becomes a somewhat a vice president of the council.

A feature of the evening's entertainment was a radio dramatization, "Unsung Heroes," dealing with the wife of the scout, sometimes called the "scout widow," and bringing out the fine contribution that women are making toward the progress of the Boy Scout movement. "Aunt Maude" Ziebel acted as announcer and she was assisted by Mrs. A. J. Hancock, Roy Holly and Ward Rudersdorf.

In a tribute to his devotion to Scouting and its efforts towards "things worth while," E. J. Ledvina was awarded the silver beaver award by Elwyn Nelson, Oshkosh, himself a Silver Beaver. Mrs. Ledvina was given the privilege of presenting the award to her husband. Others who have received this recognition, all of whom were present, were Ellis Roberts, George Nevitt, R. Clemens, F. R. Williams, Elwyn Nelson, all of Oshkosh, Roy Holly, Waupaca, and Archie Shonatt, Berlin.

466 Youths From Waupaca County Have Served CCC

Total Enrollment at Present Is 70, Supervisors are Told

Waupaca—Hugh C. Raymond, supervisor of certification of the public welfare department reported to the county board Thursday morning, that since the inauguration of civilian conservation camps in 1932, Waupaca county has had a total of 466 young men enrolled. At present there are 70 enrolled with a minimum earning capacity of $30 per month, of which $25 is assigned to an allottee. Of the young men who were formerly in camp and are now out, 86 per cent received honorable discharges.

The enrollment of young men in the CCC has not only been of great benefit to the boys, but also to the community in which they live, in cash returns for needy families, Mr. Raymond said. On Nov. 15, 1937, at present, there were 70 boys from Waupaca county in CCC camps throughout the state. For each boy in camp, $25 is coming into the county every thirty days, Mr. Raymond asserted, making a total of $1,750. Occasionally it is reported that a boy is receiving part of the allotment back at camp. However, Mr. Raymond estimated, that this does not exceed one-third or $583, leaving $1,167 or more in the county each month.

The cash value of surplus commodities distributed in Waupaca county in the last ten months totaled $6,776.13, or an average of $676.10 each month. During October clothing and household furnishings distributed totaled $519 alone, he declared. This figure is in addition to the total figure mentioned for the ten month period.

All Offices Benefit

"While distribution was originally made only to direct relief recipients, it is well to state at this time that there is not one welfare office in the county that has not derived some material benefit from the issuance of commodities or from the returns of some CCC income," said Mr. Raymond.

That statement embraced the Pension Department, Soldiers and Sailors Relief, County Children's Welfare, County Nurse, Rural Settlement Administration and the County Probation Officers Department.

Determination of eligibility for the various government works programs is delegated to the public welfare department by the Wisconsin Industrial commission. Certification of eligibility is duly made after finding by thorough investigation that the applicant is eligible. The department is delegated to investigate eligibility of students away at school who may apply for loans. Five such applications were received this school year, all of which were found to be approved by the loan department of the commission. To date, there have been no rejections by the commission of any such applications investigated and approved by the office, said Mr. Raymond.

Mr. and Mrs. Christianson, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Kraugh, Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Dain of the St. Lawrence Grange and Mrs. George Schaefer. Arrangements for the inspection program were under the direction of Mrs. Ruth Barringer of Manawa.

Through action by the state board of control and the Wisconsin Public Welfare department, the service of the county children's worker was combined with the service of the welfare department of Waupaca county.

Mr. Raymond stated that he will be glad to make investigations regarding relief clients within the county boundaries whenever he receives such a suggestion. Whenever a relief charge lives without the boundary, he will correspond with the office in the county wherein the charge is located and receive the necessary information. He assured the board that the office desires to be of utmost service to the community.

Speaker Praises Swedish People In Chapel Talk

Their Character Is Responsible for Country's Success

Character, honesty and common sense are attributes of Swedish people responsible for making Sweden the envy of the world for its good government, economic stability, and peace, Wilfred L. Husband, lecturer and student of world affairs, told Lawrence college students at convocation in Memorial chapel this morning.

The occupation of the Swedes of the same peninsula for more than 10 centuries and the homogeneous nature of the country are popular reasons given for their economic and governmental success, but Husband believes these factors of minor importance.

"The Swedes are not as dogmatic as other countries are, particularly the United States. They are interested only in results, not in whether private or public agencies are the best business managers. . . . And they do not resort to violence in settling their differences."

Sweden has a more serious interest in education than Americans, the speaker stated. "A teacher there enjoys as much prestige as a millionaire here. . . . There education does not stop at high school and college for there are 10,000 adult study circles."

Facts cited by the speaker which make Sweden the envy of the world included the country's avoidance of war for more than 100 years and the amazingly low unemployment quotient, four-tenths of one percent. Of the more than 6,200,000 people in that country, less than 12,000 are unemployed, Husband said.

Sweden has a highly organized labor exchange which keeps track of all unemployed.

It is in that country that the highest standard of living of the world exists, he said. A low cost housing program started in 1904 provides workers with clean, comfortable living accommodations at reasonable rents.

Location beyond the city limits, low cost of Swedish lumber, no political interference, and skillful construction are the reasons for the low rents in the workers' community homes, Husband said.

Social security was started in Sweden in 1896 and began to pay out pensions in 1914. The employer does not contribute as he does in the United States.

"There is no get-rich-quick urge in Sweden," Husband declared. "Bank nights would fail in a hurry there."

ZIPPERS POPULAR WITH SCHOOL GIRLS

Inspecting the zipper on a newly completed dress are three members of sewing classes at Appleton High school. Zippers have become very popular with the youthful dressmakers who use them almost exclusively in their work. In the background is part of the dress exhibit shown at the high school during the last two days. Holding the dress on the left is Miss Gertrude Wittlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Wittlin, Black Creek. In the center is Miss Bernice Wolgram, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wolgram, 1416 N. Erb street, and on the right is Miss Ruth Kranzsch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kranzsch, 1525 N. Appleton street. (Post-Crescent Photo)

High School Girls Display 150 Garments Made This Year

Dresses of wool, silk and cotton made by members of sewing classes of Appleton High school were on exhibit Wednesday and Thursday in the sewing room at the high school. Miss Mildred Nickel and Miss Sofia Nicolazzo are instructors.

Most of the dresses displayed more than 150, were made of woolen material with zipper fasteners. Plaid materials predominate this year, the teacher said, and zippers were used as fasteners almost exclusively.

Advanced classes are instructed how to choose becoming materials and colors, to select suitable patterns and to apply the decorative touches with discrimination and good taste. The display shows the standard to be unusually high this year, Miss Nickel said.

Learning to use the patterns is the main objective in instruction for beginners. The girls are encouraged to develop independence and after a year's work should be able to sew by pattern with little help.

Plant Trees on Banks of Streams

WPA Crews Begin Improvement of Waterways in Waupaca County

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—The work of planting more than 100,000 trees and bushes along streams and lakes in Waupaca and Portage counties has begun by WPA crews, according to Ous S. Bersing, state supervisor of lake and stream improvement work.

Bersing has said that stream-side planting is the most important of all work being done to improve trout streams, and is now being carried out in all the projects of the state conservation department.

"The value of stream-side planting is that it cools the stream by the added shade, thus improving the conditions for fish life," according to Bersing. "It anchors the immediate shore line soil, thus preventing erosion and the rapid runoff of surface water."

Such planting also provides an opportunity for herbal vegetation to gain a foothold along the banks, he explains. "With firm shores a stream is held in narrow bounds, thereby creating a deeper and more satisfactory stream."

The trees and bushes being planted in the central Wisconsin project were raised at the state tree nursery at Wisconsin Rapids, headed by Earl Wallace. Intended to provide cover for game, the trees and bushes are planted along the banks of streams and lakes and in areas of the counties in which game is most abundant.

Expect Few Major Bills to be Passed Before Christmas

Wisconsin Legislators May Disagree Over Wages, Hours Legislation

BY ROSAMOND COLE Washington—Back in the capital for the special session of congress, Wisconsin members of the house of representatives seem to be sharing in the dubious attitude that generally pervades the session.

Most of them object to the stalling around and several have expressed the opinion that little if any legislation of major importance will be transacted before Christmas.

Congressman George J. Schneider of Appleton, only Wisconsin member on the labor committee, believes that some sort of wages and hours legislation will be enacted. But like everyone else, he does not know what bill the house will finally receive for action.

Gradual Process "I believe congress should do something about limiting the number of hours per week and establishing a minimum wage," he said. "The best way to do it is the way which will least discommodate industry. It should be a gradual process."

Chances are that members of the Wisconsin delegation will find themselves in disagreement over wages and hours legislation; Congressman Thomas O'Malley, Milwaukee Democrat, has said that he will not vote for any wages and hours legislation which exempts any industries.

Congressman Gardner R. Withrow of LaCrosse believes that such legislation must contain exemptions relative to dairy men.

Considerable difference of opinion is likely to be felt by Badger members of congress relative to the farm bill, also. Schneider has pointed out that in previous federal farm programs, Wisconsin is not likely to be affected as are states which large crops such as cotton, wheat and corn.

Farm Bill Progressives are generally agreed that the farm bill should contain some provisions to benefit Wisconsin. Congressman Gerald J. Boileau of Wausau, only Wisconsin member of the agriculture committee, has declared that unless the bill provides that land taken out of production of one crop shall not be planted to crops required in dairying, he will oppose the bill.

His amendment to that effect was turned down by the house agriculture committee, now working on the measure, by vote of 11 to 10.

Congressman Michael K. Reilly, Fond du Lac Democrat, is likely to vote for wages and hours legislation and the farm bill, as he usually supports administration measures.

Map Plans to Rush Work on New Road

Resume Construction of Superhighway 41 Next Spring

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—With the consent of the Outagamie county board of supervisors to the routing of the new Superhighway 41 through the Outagamie county asylum grounds, work on completing the Highway 41 project will be resumed next spring.

William O'Brien, member of the state highway commission said here yesterday.

Informed of the county board's action, O'Brien said that plans would be pushed to finish the 20-mile stretch of new highway as soon as the building season opens next spring, and that plans are nearly complete already.

About 11 miles of the new route remains to be completed, he said due to the delay of Outagamie county in agreeing to the county farm route.

O'Brien said that the new highway, which extends from McCarthy's crossing north of Kaukauna to a point just south of Neenah, is one of the most expensive highway jobs under taken by the state highway commission in recent years.

CIVIL WAR VET DIES

Beaver Dam, Wis.—(P)—Valentine Zoelle, last Civil war veteran in Beaver Dam, died of heart disease yesterday. He was 94 years old.

It Is Said--

That the most amusing incident in the presentation of "Noah" last night by the Sunset Players of Lawrence college was an unheeded one. The dove which Noah sent out to look for land was, in the play, an artificial one, made of wood, and he had made arrangements to throw it to a prop man off stage to give it the semblance of flight. But the prop man apparently missed it, for the audience heard it come down with a loud thud. It is to the credit of the performers that they let the mishap bother them not at all but continued to look heavenward watching the dove in its alleged flight. The audience, however, was less imaginative and laughed loud and long at the incident.

That one automobile owner, because he never sends his license money in ridiculously early to assure his getting a very low number, never asks for the same number every year—in fact, never wants a special number at all, not even one coinciding with his telephone number or his house number, but is satisfied with whatever he gets—is thinking of asking the secretary of state for a reduction in the license fee.

Funds Given in Red Cross Roll Call Pass $450 Mark

Although membership is less so far in the annual American Red Cross roll call, more money has been collected than during the same period in 1936. Mrs. S. C. Shannon, executive secretary of Outagamie county chapter, reported today.

Up until noon today, $443.50 was paid into the fund by 128 new members while last year during the same period of roll call, $339.50 was paid by 176 members, Mrs. Shannon said.

The local office will be open between 7 and 8 o'clock tonight and between 7 and 8 o'clock Monday evening to receive donations and to give campaign chairmen a chance to check in. The office will be open all day during the roll call.

Mrs. Shannon said the residential donations are coming in very slow this year as compared with other years. Anyone who wishes to join, or has not been contacted, may send the membership fee to the local office at 104 E. College avenue and a pin and membership card will be sent through the mail.

Industrial and business reports have not been received but the few that have reported show increases over last year's donations, Mrs. Shannon said. Requests have been received by Mrs. Shannon for 100 per cent cards from many business buildings which have not as yet reported the amount collected.

Quality Program Termed Need in Dairy Industry

Badger Cheesemakers Told They Must Protect Present Leadership

Green Bay—(P)—Edward Malchieski, Sr., of Pulaski, told the Wisconsin Cheesemakers' association yesterday that the state's dairy interests must adopt "a quality program if they wish to protect their position as the nation's leading producers."

Malchieski, a cheesemaker, dirt farmer and one of the seven men named by Governor LaFollette to make up the reorganized state department of agriculture, said "education, inspection and supervision, with the cooperation of all concerned," would be leading factors in better dairy products were to be produced.

Cheese and other dairy manufacturers, he added, must realize that their and the farmers' interests are mutual. Present trends indicate "in a small way, at least, that an improvement in quality is already coming about," he said.

The association, concluding its forty-sixth annual convention, went on record requesting "congressional influence to reinstate former cheese import rates."

Ask Investigation The delegates also urged an investigation by the Wisconsin State department of agriculture into alleged unfair trade practices within the cheese industry.

A cheese scoring contest conducted in conjunction with the convention drew a total of 272 entries. Class winners and their scores were:

Otto H. Yordi, Hortonville, aged American cheese, 97.25; Yordi, young American, 96.75; Emil K. Sonneberg, Coto, October, Calvary, Colby cheese, 95.75; Jacob Aeschlimann, Argyle, drum Swiss, 94.50; John Rechsteiner, Blue Mounds, Block Swiss, 94.00; Emil Gertsch, Woodland, limburger, 93.50; George Dittberner, Horicon, brick, 96.00, and Gottfried Zurbuchen, Fox Lake, Munster, 93.00.

Rooney Finds Every Political Rose Has Its Pointed Thorns

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—Political office has its attractions, and its miseries too, as George Rooney Appleton athlete at the University of Wisconsin and president of its senior class, is learning this week.

Two weeks ago Rooney was an easy winner for the highest student office at the university. Today he is probably wishing that he had not succumbed to the charms of politics.

For, he has found, last year's class bequeathed him an empty treasury, necessitating a levy on all the senior students, an unpleasant task at best.

Now Rooney has turned to his senior class council for help in assessing dues which will be low enough to prevent rebellion, and high enough to finance class activities and to purchase the traditional class memorial.

Employees Association May Organize Valley Chapters

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—Municipal, county and state employees in the Fox river valley section offer an attractive opportunity for organization work for the Wisconsin State Employees association, writes William L. Frazier, chief organizer in the current issue of the group's monthly magazine. Says Frazier: "In looking forward to the future certain points attract thought at once. In the Lake Winnebago district we now have strong working chapters at Winnebago and Green Bay. There are a sufficient number of members at large to set up a chapter at Oshkosh, and we are told that the employees at Taycheedah are ready to establish their chapter."

Life of Newspaper Woman Depicted in Girls' Book

A book depicting the life of a young newspaper woman called "Peggy Covers the News," by Emma Bugbee, is being featured in the children's department at the Appleton Public library this week. National Book week closes Saturday.

Peggy is an active young woman and is one of the best college correspondents the New York Star ever had but couldn't get a permanent job on the staff after graduation. How she makes friends with Kate Morrison, a veteran newspaper woman, and meets Peter MacPherson, an aviator-reporter, makes an interesting story for youngsters.

Other books of adventure for girls on the library shelves include: "The Great Tradition," by Alice; "The Luck of the Salabars," by Baker; "The House By the Road," by Bacon; "Riders of the Rio Grande," by Balch; "Homespun," by Berry; "The Gate Swings In," by Burdon.

Proceeds Go Into Fund for Purchase of Three Acres of Land

Boy Scout Troop 5 of the St. Theresa church will hold a card party Sunday night at 8 o'clock at the church, the proceeds of which will go into a fund for purchase of three acres of land in Center Swamp six miles north of town which the troop has purchased.

The troop is the first in the city to buy land and to start plans for the construction of its own cabin. Members already have made several hikes to the property and are clearing underbrush for the cabin in which they will stay on overnight hikes and during weekends.

The troop committee and the senior patrol, assisted by Ivan Stone, scoutmaster, and Mrs. M. Wagner will have charge of the card party.

Ray Schwaller has been appointed camp manager and chairman of the camp committee made up of Ivan Stone, C. R. Laut, Jim Schultz, and Glen Utchig. Members of the troop committee are Edward Molten, chairman, the Rev. M. A. Hauch, Dr. A. A. Denil, L. O. Jacobs, C. R. Laut, and John Mollineau.

Be sure to have plenty of storage or closet space in your "rumor" or "whoopie" room. If built-in closets are not available use portable ones for holding games and cards. To save dusting, cover the furniture or game tables when they are not in use.

Babson Charges Japan Has Become World Enemy No. 1

Writer Believes War When it Comes Will Be Around Baltic

BY ROGER BABSON

Babson Park, Mass.—There will be no World war in the immediate future. The biggest threat to Europe's peace awaits the day when Hitler and Mussolini find themselves slipping. Against that day all Europe is squandering fabulous sums on armaments. If war does not come, inflation will. The real Number 1 Enemy of the world today is not Germany or Italy, but Japan. Having had a few days at home from Europe to sort out my thoughts and impressions, I want to give readers my conclusions on European conditions.

Most all my American friends believe that the next war will start along the shores of the Mediterranean sea. They may be correct, but I doubt if it will develop out of the Spanish war. Mussolini, however, may lose his head and do something so foolish that England will finally retaliate. I doubt this also. England is rapidly arming to the teeth; but she will take a great deal of insulting talk from Mussolini as long as he does not attempt to take any land or shillings from the British Empire. Here is my idea:

I believe that the next war will start around the Baltic Sea in Lithuania and Latvia. These two small countries lie between East Prussia and Russia, to the north of Poland. Now that Italy has taken Ethiopia and Japan is taking North China, Germany thinks she must take something. My guess is that she will expand northeasterly across the Niemen river rather than westerly across the Rhine or southeasterly across the Danube. By working in this direction, Germany enlarges her bread-basket without offending either France or Italy.

Baltic Expansion Some think that Germany may strike north to Norway and Sweden—or possibly seize Holland and Denmark since she has recently guaranteed the sanctity of Belgium. I do not agree with this. Germany cannot afford to incur the enmity of these Scandinavian and adjoining nations. She needs their fish, meat, and dairy products as well as their iron, lumber, and aluminum. Besides, England and France would at once fight Germany if she went to the west or north. Lithuania, Latvia, Estonia, and possibly a part of Poland seem the most logical goals of Der Fuhrer.

Not only would these small countries add to the Fatherland's food supply, but the possession of their ports would enable Hitler to bottle up the Russian Communists by sea. This would be necessary if Germany ever hopes to take the Ukraine from Russia later, when, as and if, Russia and Japan go to war against each other. Of course, Germany eyes Czechoslovakia, Rumania, and Yugoslavia enviously, but so does Hitler.

Hence, I believe that the Little Entente is safe for the present. But "good night" to those other little nations which Woodrow Wilson formed in 1920!

When I Expect War Germany is a great homogeneous nation of 67,000,000 people. Her leaders have made many mistakes. I cannot defend their attitude as to war, or the Jews, or the Church. On the other hand, the nation is self-contained—brave, intelligent, and very proud. England, Germany and Russia are destined to be the three greatest nations of Europe. France has already passed her zenith and is fast declining in manhood and influence. England, spread out all over the world, has her hands full and will do almost anything to avoid war. She has everything to lose and nothing to gain by conflict.

Hence, I say, "Forget Spain but Watch Germany." As long as Hitler and Mussolini can hold the confidence of their people there need be no fear of a World war. They will hold this confidence as long as the economic conditions within their nations are not too bad.

When food becomes scarce and taxes unbearable, however, their people will revolt and a "war of desperation" will follow. This is some time off. Such a revolt should not occur in both Germany and Italy at the same time. Hitler and Mussolini are only paper allies. Neither trusts the other.

Armament Race Of course, the present re-armament race cannot continue indefinitely. Preparing for war today is tremendously more expensive than it was 25 years ago. Men can be drafted; but bombing planes, armored motor tanks, and 30-knot air-plane carriers must be bought with either gold or goods. The strain, therefore, on foreign exchange is terrific. This means that Europe is heading for more and more inflation.

If Europe does not fall off a war precipice, she will certainly get buried in an inflation landslide. I would not have a dollar invested anywhere in Europe! Economically the outlook is very black. Furthermore, in the long run, the United States and Canada must suffer with Europe and inflate also. I do not agree with many people that a World war is now imminent. Without a spiritual awakening, it will come some day, but the fear that it could destroy civilization, regardless of who "wins", makes every nation mortally afraid of it. As long as those who remember the World War remain in control of nations, the probabilities are that we have nothing to fear, provided we will keep well-armed and well-protected.

Must Back England Keeping well-armed means that every city near the sea-coast of the United States must protect itself against the most modern deadly war weapon—bombling planes. We should build "shelters" for our people. Every home should have a bomb-proof and gas-proof room in its basement. Every attic should be made fire-proof. Fire patrols should be organized in every city, particularly those on our Pacific coast. The easiest and surest way to keep Japanese bombing planes away from Seattle and San Francisco is for Japan to know that every Western home is "bomb-proof".

Yes, I am writing very seriously. The World's real Number One Enemy is Japan. Our best defense is to back up England in her foreign policy. She is the only "world policeman" who we can trust today. We must give her courage and moral support—although we must urge her to give Germany's claims very careful consideration.

Red Devils Get Seven

Selection

BY GORDON MCINTYRE
HE shot heard round the world away back in '76 or something like that, had nothing on the repercussions heard and expected on the Fox River Valley conference all-star grid teams as selected last night at a meeting of the Fox River Valley Sports Writers' association when they polled the votes of coaches and writers.

Much of the repercussion is expected to come from up around Green Bay way where the folks are asked over the fact that, while Green Bay East won the title with 167 points to 9 for opponents, not a single one of the lads who "carried the mail" for the Bays was placed on the first team.

Added to that Sheboygan, which didn't do so well, rated three men on the first squad, the same number as Green Bay East. And, added to that, some of the Manitowoc boys

Appleton Places Three
Appleton rated three boys on the first all-conference team, none on the second and one on the third, which should also make the Terriers angry. Laverne Bergner won an end berth on the first squad by polling the greatest number of votes to go to end. Arnold Harmsen took a tackle berth because he polled more first than John Messenger. Green Bay East, although both had 12 votes.

And of course, Charles Sample was named to the fullback position with 24 votes, one of the largest totals of the poll. His nearest competitor was Noel Olson. Green Bay East, whose votes were split between full and half.

Don Kolbus, Green Bay East, drew 27 votes for center and tackle, only four coming for the latter position which he played on defense. Elmer Mineau, East, was selected as a guard with 22 votes, all but two being first team selections. The other guard was Henry Pavlik. East, who tied with a teammate, Gordon Deville, but who drew the edge because of first team selections. Sheboygan's placements were Albert Katcheky, who received 16 votes, the most going to any tackle. Fred Schmidt, halfback. The latter was tied with a Manitowoc youth but got the nod on the basis of first team choices.

The other schools to place a first team player were Oshkosh with the honor going to Dick Erditz, ver-

Says Pitt Panthers Would Decline Bid for Rose Bowl

BY EDDIE BRIETZ
NEW YORK—(AP)—Billy Bearhild and Henry Armstrong who tangle in Madison Square Garden tonight, grew up in the same town (St. Louis) but never met.

When John Carroll university plays Western reserve at Cleveland tomorrow, John Lucas, sophomore center for John Carroll from Sharpsville, Pa., will line up against John Lucas, Western reserve sophomore halfback from Sharpsville, Pa. Both are slovak, old pals and high school companions (no relation).

So far as the football reporters are concerned, the most popular coach to come to town is "Slip" Madigan of the St. Mary's Gaels... (That feller has a way with him)...

The anti-Nazi crowd has started its boycott of the Max Schmeling-Harry Thomas fight by picketing Mike Jacobs' Hippodrome, although the fight will be held in Madison Square Garden... Note to California: We have it fairly straight Pitt will decline a Rose Bowl bid even if one is tendered.

No four-star football special this week uncertain conditions being too uncertain... But here are a couple of lusty two-star specials: Columbia over Dartmouth and Stanford over Dartmouth...

Extra... The Associated Press All America football team (official in most books and the one all the boys want to make) comes out Dec. 4... Dick Friedlieb of the San Francisco Chronicle thought he was all set to marry Miss Betty Turner, San Francisco beauty and center a honeymoon at the Tanager race track... Ten minutes after the ceremony he got marching orders to board the St. Mary's special... Incidentally the special brought along 190 fans who paid $35 each for the trip...

Jimmy Dykes may be talking out of his hat but here's what the guy says: He will trade every member of the White Sox except Luke Appling, Monte Stratton, Mike Kreevich and Luke Sewell... Also, he wouldn't part with the banana-eating Zeke Bonura for Jimmy Fox. Hal Trosky or Joe Kuhel... (Is he still so hot in Chicago?)

Right here we start nominations for an All American football manager with the name of Earl Luke of Louisiana State... They say this boy really is the tops... Pitt had better look out for a bird named Hackney when it goes to Durham to play Duke a week from tomorrow.

Brooklyn Dodger 'Problem Child' On Trading Block

Van Lingle Mungo Due to Take Oral Crack at Manager Grimes

BY SID FEDER
NEW YORK—(AP)—The open season on Van Lingle Mungo, which arrives about this time every year, finds the hot-stovers going full blast again over the "problem child" of Brooklyn's Daily Dodgers.

Annually, it's the custom for cracker-barrel managers to trade Brooklyn's temperamental fireballer to any and all clubs in the National league.

And just as sure as three strikes are out, Van usually pops up from his Page-Mungo land (S. C.) hunting grounds during this season with a statement loaded with as much fire as his fast ball.

Fined $100 A Day
To date, Mungo hasn't spoken officially. He's too busy hunting foxes. But any day now, he'll probably take an oral crack at his current peevish manager Burleigh Grimes, who put the chill on him for something like $100 a day by suspending him without pay last August.

Meantime, "Boiling Boily," who's somewhat better than a green hand, himself, at popping off, is keeping quiet, but it's no secret that he's looking over offers to trade him, Mungo.

Van is definitely on the block this year. His dismal showing last season may have cut down the price for his good right arm, but the Dodgers are willing to let him go just the same, before there's a chance for anything else to happen to lower the value of their highest-paid piece of bric-a-brac.

Report Six Bids
If you would believe reports, as many as six clubs already have bid for the finger who has generally been regarded as No. 3 on the National league lists. The Chicago Cubs and New York Giants are reported to have made offers, although owner P. K. Wrigley says it's "news" to him that the Cubs have tried to get Mungo.

If Santa Claus wanted to give Mungo a Christmas present that would please him more than a $25,000 salary boost, all that has to happen is for Van to find himself traded to some other club (preferably first division). For several seasons now, Mungo has been raving over the poor support aided which he claims his Dodger teammates give him. Two seasons ago, he ran into difficulty with club mozzels and a heavy fine was slapped on him, but it was later retracted.

HANS AHL LOSES TO CHICAGO BOXER

Hans Ahl, Oshkosh, right above, appears to be catching a rather hard wallop to the jaw from Ed Conroy, Chicago, in their windup bout at Armory G last night. But whether it was a real wallop or not Ahl didn't go down after the camera clicked. He did lose the decision to Conroy, however, the Chicagoan showing a lot of class. He dropped Ahl for no count in the opening frame. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Ed Walus, 139, Green Bay, won decision from Les Walters, 135, Sheboygan, three rounds.

Stanley Kakez, 154, Sheboygan, defeated Allen Duffek, 148, West DePere, decision, in three rounds.

BY RANDY HAASE
EVEN decisions, with only two knockdowns, marked the bouts sponsored by Oney Johnston post of the American Legion last night at Armory G before a crowd of 800. Ed Conroy and Mickey Rebeby, Chicago boxers brought here by George "Jabber" Young, won decisions in the double windup.

Ed Conroy, one of the Chicago Golden Gloves contenders, pounded out a convincing decision over Hans Ahl, Oshkosh, in five rounds. Conroy was a superior boxer and out-slugged Ahl when necessary to win all five rounds. He dropped Ahl in the last round but the rugged Oshkosh boxer was up without a count.

The first round was almost even but Conroy went on to take each succeeding round by a more and more convincing margin. Ahl was dangerous right up to the final going. He kept swinging and carried power in his fists as Conroy found in several flurries.

Close Decision
Mickey Rebeby, the other Chicago windup contestant, won a close decision over Bruce Fero, Oshkosh, in five rounds. Rebeby piled up a lead in the first four rounds to withstand a whirlwind finish by Fero. Rebeby was dropped just at the end of the fourth round with a blow which was protested by some of the crowd as low. Fero was inclined to hit as they broke from clinches instead of stepping back.

Rebeby was an adept boxer and kept out of Fero's way during the early part of the bout. Fero apparently was content to take it easy and did not really serious fighting until the fifth round when he cut loose with several flurries of punches. Rebeby landed several blows in the early part of the fight which apparently shook the tough Oshkosh battler but Fero handed out punishment of his own.

Big Ten Players Will 'Shoot the Works' in Tilts

Senior Gridders Will Play Hearts Out in Traditional Games

BY EARL HILLIGAN
CHICAGO—(P)—All chips will be on the line tomorrow in the Big Ten's "showdown" football program.
Hopes of individual players for a spectacular finish to their collegiate careers, as well as the aspirations of teams to finish their schedules in the "win" column will be riding as the Western conference puts "finish" on its 1937 campaign. And from the championship battle between Minnesota and Wisconsin to the traditionally hard-fought affair involving Chicago and Illinois, the windup card appears packed with action.
A capacity crowd of 47,000 is expected at Evanston to watch Northwestern's attempt to "take out" on Notre Dame the 26 to 6 defeat the Irish handed the Wildcats last year. The Irish will be favored to repeat, but Northwestern, with a fine line, is rated a good chance to win and "salve" to some extent, a season that was mediocre in comparison with 1936. In addition, Captain Don Heap, for three years a great back for Northwestern, will put in a final bid for All-American honors.

King in Last Game Such stars as Ray King, who is gaining national mention as an end, and Lou Midler, Dwight Reed, Rudy Gmire and Bob Wolf will play their final game for Minnesota as the Gophers try for a victory over Wisconsin. A victory for Minnesota would give it undisputed claim to the Big Ten title with five wins and no defeats. For Wisconsin, Fred Benz, a fine end, will wind up his collegiate career.

Indiana and Purdue aren't in the title running, but their "Old Oaken Bucket" game always is a scorcher. Two great battles will bow out. Case Island, the Purdue spearhead, may give a performance which would make him an All-American choice of some observers. Corbett Davis, Indiana fullback, has played the best ball of his Indiana grid tenure.
Traditional Tilts
Ohio State and Michigan will tangle at Ann Arbor in another traditional game. Jim McDonald, rated by many newsmen the head-fest, will be playing his final game, while for Michigan such fine players as Stark Ritchie, Joe Rinaldi, Art Valpey and Bill Barclay will appear for the last time. Michigan, with three Big Ten games won and two lost, will battle to upset a team which has lost only one conference tilt in five starts.
Bob Fitzgerald, a fine defensive end and a splendid punter, will be playing his final game for Chicago as the Maroons try to upset Illinois at Champaign in the forty-second battle between these old rivals. For Illinois, such dependables as Dick Fay, Joe Kiernan, Bill Bennis and Carl Knox will be doing the pads for a final fling.
Iowa goes outside the conference to tackle the tough Nebraska Cornhuskers at Lincoln and this battle will be the culminate finale of Hawkeyes Frank Gallagher, Bob Lamson, and Dick Anderson, the latter a fine punter. The game may definitely stamp sophomore Nile Kinnick of Iowa as the man to watch in 1938. This youngster appears to have everything necessary to be a standout in the conference during the next two seasons.

Oshkosh Boxers Are Defeated By Chicagoans

Jake Wagner, Sheboygan, Lutz took the first round by a close margin, dropped the second by a similar difference, and finished strong in the third to merit the decision. He kept his left in Wagner's face and punched him around the ring. Wagner was groggy but kept on his feet.
George Zenz, Green Bay, won a decision from Maurice Osk Keshena, in the second bout. Both fighters were very cautious and missed more windmill punches than they landed. When they weren't dancing around, they were clinching. The edge went to Zenz on somewhat better punching although Osk's crouch kept him puzzled.
Stanley Kakez, Sheboygan, and Allen Duffek, West DePere, both punched themselves tired before the third round was over with the edge going to Kakez. Both mixed freely in the first two rounds but were glad to cover up and hang on in the third.
Crowd Boos Decision
Some effective counter-punching by Ed Walus, Green Bay, won him a three round decision over Les Walters, Sheboygan. Walters was on the aggressive throughout the bout and most of the last round. Walus countered effectively with both hands. The decision was one of several booted by the crowd. Without Walters to do the leading, the contest would have been dull. Walus, however, fought a very effective bout.
Roy Vidovitch, Green Bay, won a decision from Al Robbins, Oshkosh, in the fifth bout on the card. Vidovitch carried a sting in both hands and landed the cleaner blows. Robbins kept lunging forward with clubbing blows throughout the three rounds but found Vidovitch willing to mix. Vidovitch took the first round, dropped the second, and won the third with cleaner blows to the body.

Chaff 'n Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre
THIS corner takes one hasty, birds-eye view of the week's football slate and calls frantically for a horse in order to emulate the famous Leacock hero who mounted his trusty steed and "galloped madly off in all directions." No equine transportation being forthcoming, it seems valor will have to bat for discretion, so here goes:
Stanford-California: This one decides the Pacific Coast conference race and probably the far western representative in the Rose Bowl. That's a terrific mental load for youngsters to carry. Despite Stanford's ready improvement and its marked ability to translate every break into a score, the nod goes to undefeated California.
Harvard-Yale: The pressure is on unbeaten Yale but just why that should be cause for Eli alarm is hard to fathom. Harvard, with Struck and Boston ready, will be tough but the ball is cast for Yale.
Notre Dame-Northwestern: The nomination is Notre Dame but the Irish will do their followers a big favor if they quit stalling in the scoring zone.
Fordham-St. Mary's: If they play the bells of St. Mary's after this one it probably will be in a minor and plaintive key. Fordham.
Pitt-Penn State: Pitt's due for a big let-down and Penn American honors.

tile back, who was named to the quarterback position; and West whose Vernon Anderson was honored with a halfback berth.
The second team saw Green Bay East place seven players, four line-men and three backs, among them the high scorers for the Red Devils which caused much of the feeling on the part of East supporters. Manitowoc got three boys on the second team and Oshkosh one.
Last night's meeting was attended by about 40 writers and coaches from the Fox river valley with the entire group being guests of the Appleton Post-Crescent for dinner.

Other talks were by Elmer Lampe, athletic director at Carroll college in answer to the request of the sports writers for suggestions on publicity, and Arthur C. Denney, athletic director of Lawrence college, who also talked about the publicity angle.
Thereafter the sports writers proceeded to count the votes on the all-conference team while the coaches and guests sat around and talked shop until the party started to break up.

Scollon Bowling Thumb Gives Owner Black Eye, $10 Bill

Chicago—(P)—John Hickey inserted two fingers into a 16-pound bowling ball, threw a calculating glance at the distant ten pins, took three or four quick steps and let fly.
The ball didn't get away from the swollen thumb. It described a wide arc and thudded against Hickey's right eye. That ended his bowling for the evening but more excitement was in store.
His fellow teammates separated the unconscious Hickey from the ball, then rushed him to a hospital where a physician closed the wound over the eye with five stitches and presented a bill for $10. The size of the bill hurt worse than the wound and Hickey yelled proportionately.
The arrival of three squads of police in response to a call from a frightened nurse had a calming influence of everyone. Hickey collected $10 from his friends and paid the bill.
Today Hickey listed bowling among the more dangerous sports.

Marquette in Final Drill for Duquesne

Milwaukee—(P)—Marquette university gridmen worked out for the last time today before concluding their 1937 grid campaign with a "Parents' day" game against Duquesne tomorrow.
The game will conclude the varsity football careers of seven Marquette seniors. They include Captain Ray Sonnenberg, Milwaukee, and Morgan Busch, Algoma, backs; Roger Lumb, Waukesha, Howard Hansen, Racine, and Ralph Kuhn, Milwaukee, tackles; Mike Czerniecki, Kalamazoo, Mich., guard, and Roy Schoemann, Milwaukee, center.
A knee injury is expected to keep Schoemann from seeing action. Duquesne comes here with a record that includes three defeats, two of them 6 to 0 setbacks suffered at the hands of Carnegie Tech and Pittsburgh. Marquette dropped its last five engagements.

'OFFER HOLDS'

The Michigan Daily, student paper at the University of Michigan, said in a copyrighted article Tom Harmon (above), freshman football prospect at Michigan, had received a telegram from "Bill Bevan" saying "our offer still holds." Bevan was identified as an assistant coach at Tulane.

'Sunny Jim' Relieved Of Managerial Duties

St. Louis—(P)—This shouldn't surprise anyone, since it has been rumored so often, but James Leroy Bottomley, who succeeded Rogers Hornsby as manager of the St. Louis Browns last July 21, was given his unconditional release today.
Discharge of "Sunny Jim" left the Browns the only club in either league without a manager for 1938. Bottomley, played first base for the Cardinals from 1922 to 1932, before going to Cincinnati. In March, 1936, he came to the Browns as a coach.

Plan Pin Tournament For High School Boys

A round robin bowling tournament for Appleton High school senior, junior and sophomore class teams will begin at the Appleton Y. M. C. A. Monday afternoon. Joseph Shields, athletic director, said today. Norman Schlietwiler will head the senior squad, John Bick will lead the junior team and Gerald Bayer will captain the sophomore five.
No Lighting Facilities
It has been the hope of hockey enthusiasts of these cities and other communities to form a Valley league but because a number of the cities were without lighting facilities the plans were abandoned.
However, this year it is expected that enough cities will be equipped with lighting equipment to start a league. A number of communities are also making plans to secure equipment for night games, it was said.

Fordham Gridders Chanting 'Pin a Rose Bowl on Me'

Rams Make No Secret of Ambition to Play in New Year's Day Tilt

BY GAYLE TALBOT
NEW YORK—(P)—There's one thing refreshing about the Fordham Rams, who risk their undefeated record against St. Mary's tomorrow at the Polo Grounds. They admit they want to go to the Rose Bowl so bad they can taste it.
They never have been coy on the question, the Rams. Every year since Jimmy Crowley took over the Polish corridor, they've been wearing buttons inscribed: "From Rose Bowl." And every year something painful has happened to the Rams just about the time they thought they had the big game sewed up.
Last season they were knocked off by their aimless neighbors, the New York University Violets, in the last game on their schedule. Their highly-publicized "seven blocks of granite" got no closer to the Rose Bowl than 242nd street.
Now they have their chins out again, and it looks like the best chance they've ever had. If they get past the Gaels tomorrow and then trim N. Y. U., the boys with the unpronounceable names will be about a 2-1 shot to represent the east on New Year's day.
From what Coach "Slip" Madigan of St. Mary's and the flock of newspapermen who accompanied the Gaels east, say, there seems to be no doubt that the coast is determined to have a change of faces in the Rose Bowl. They declare that both Pittsburgh and Alabama are out for this year at least.
"What they want, of course, is some member of the Ivy league," said one coast authority. "I'll bet they would be willing to give Yale all the gate receipts. Well, anyway, half the gate receipts. But they know there isn't a chance. And they are tired of Pittsburgh and Alabama. So that leaves what?"
Fordham.

Black Hawks Skate to 3-1 Win Over Red Wings

By The Associated Press
It doesn't take a Sherlock Holmes to discover what's making the Toronto Maple Leafs click, or what's wrong with Detroit's Red Wings, in the current hockey wars.
The Leafs are making goals; the championship Wings aren't.
The Toronto system is simple based on the theory that the best defense is a good offense, the Leafs have spread-eagled the league in point scoring and have remained undefeated in five games, although their record shows three ties, the latest of which was a rough and tumble 6-all affair with the Montreal Canadiens last nights.
At the same time, Boston was demonstrating how the "other half" works, by chalking up their fourth straight win with a close 2-1 decision over the New York Americans, while the Red Wings, still lacking any kind of scoring punch, were roughly handled by Chicago's battering Black Hawks, 3-1.

Anything May Happen In Big Ten Grid Finale

Chicago—(P)—Minnesota will be favored to win an undisputed Big Ten football title by defeating Wisconsin tomorrow, but there are three other possible finishes to the 1937 Western conference campaign.
1. Minnesota can win a clear title by defeating Wisconsin.
2. Ohio State can win a clear title by defeating Michigan, providing Wisconsin whips Minnesota.
3. Indiana will tie Minnesota and Ohio State if Minnesota loses and Ohio State ties with Michigan, provided Indiana defeats Purdue.
4. If Ohio State and Minnesota lose and Indiana wins, then Minnesota and Indiana will tie for the title.
Minnesota has won four conference games and lost none; Ohio State has won four and lost one; Indiana has won three and lost one.

May Organize Hockey League in Fox Valley

Fond du Lac—Fond du Lac's hockey team may play in a Fox river valley league this winter, according to Obert Hoffman, manager of the squad which was formerly known as the Fond du Lac Bears.
Hockey representatives of eight cities—Fond du Lac, Oshkosh, Neenah, Manitowoc, Madison, Milwaukee, Green Bay and Appleton—will gather in the early part of December to lay plans for the formation of a Fox River Valley league.
No Lighting Facilities
It has been the hope of hockey enthusiasts of these cities and other communities to form a Valley league but because a number of the cities were without lighting facilities the plans were abandoned.
However, this year it is expected that enough cities will be equipped with lighting equipment to start a league. A number of communities are also making plans to secure equipment for night games, it was said.

Two Vikings Picked on College All-Star Team

LAWRENCE college football team placed two men, Captain Carleton Grode and Albert Novakofski, both of Menasha, on the all-state college football team as picked by Coaches Paul Derr, Lawrence, Bud Butler, Beloit, and Elmer Lampe, Carroll. Coach Carl Doehling, Ripon, failed to return his selection. The ballots were opened and the vote compiled at a meeting of the Fox River Valley Sports Writers' association last night at the Conway hotel.
Novakofski received the unanimous vote of the three coaches for a halfback berth as result of his sensational ball carrying for the Vikings. Grode also was favored with three first team votes and was placed at a guard position. He played both guard and tackle for the Vikings.
Carroll college, which won the mythical state honors with wins over Lawrence and Ripon, placed four men on the first team. They were Art Buck, star back, who was placed at quarter and named captain, Constable, tackle, McGrath, guard, and Krause, end.
Ripon also placed three men. Evans was given one wing assignment, Miller was placed at tackle, and Horky, the Crimson's star back, was placed at one half.
Beloit won two berths. Muetzner, the Gold's husky center, was picked along with Plinske, fullback.

Beauhild, Armstrong In Crucial Ring Battle

The prospects for a lot of action between two of the buster hitting fellows has Promoter Mike Jacobs jubilantly confident that the faithful will pack the big Eighth avenue arena with as many as 18,000 fans.

Badgers in Role of Underdog Against Minnesota Eleven

Gophers Out for Undisputed Title; Wisconsin Plans Aerial Attack

MADISON—(P)—Thirty-five members of the University of Wisconsin football squad left for Minneapolis this morning to meet the highly favored Minnesota Gophers in a game that will determine whether Minnesota wins an undisputed Big Ten championship.
All indications pointed to the same Badger lineup that started last week against Purdue, with perhaps one change. Lynn Hovland, Bloomer left guard, may get the starting call over John Doyle. Hovland gave a fine account of himself against the Gophers in 1935 and his play during the past week may give him the edge over the Pennsylvania sophomore.
The other positions probably will be assigned to Benz, acting captain and Weigandt at ends; Dorsch and Brodhead, tackles; Cole, right guard; Murray, center; Gavre, quarterback; Schmitz and Malesevic, halfbacks; and Weiss, fullback.
Stresses Pass Offense
Coach Harry Stuhldreher, for the fourth time this week, stressed pass offense in yesterday's drill. Schmitz, Gavre, Malesevic and Weiss did most of the throwing. Minnesota's only weak point, according to Guy Lowman, Badger scout, is on aerial defense and Stuhldreher will strike at that soft spot.
Freshmen tutored in Gopher formations, both offensive and defensive, also ran through plays while the varsity squad watched. The practice field was covered with snow for the first time this season.
The Wisconsin team will arrive at Minneapolis about 1 p. m. and go immediately to Memorial field for a practice session.
Five Badgers will be concluding their collegiate careers. They are: Fred Benz, Milwaukee, end; Vern Peak, Eau Claire, end; Wally Cole, Madison, guard; Erv Johnson, Wisconsin Dells, guard and Neil Pohl, Milwaukee, center. Eddie Misiak, halfback also is graduating but did not make the trip.

Weaknesses Found In America Cause Drift to Fascism

Present Emergency Leadership Has Not Yet Been Developed

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, D. C. — If ever there was a perfect set-up for the introduction of fascism in America, it lies in the way democracy today is drifting. The three essentials prerequisite to European fascism were: a helpless, rudderless legislative body; a series of strikes and interruptions to production and a bungling capitalism.

Today, these three weaknesses are to be found in the bickering of congress, the irresponsibility of labor and the hesitation of the capital to assert a policy of genuine cooperation with government.

President Roosevelt might have been able to pull all the discordant factions together if he had started earlier. But the leadership of America for the present emergency has not yet been developed. Maybe it will be found in the attitude of an independent group in both houses of congress. Maybe it will be found in a series of legislative steps, which, in the next few weeks, could reassure business.

But there is no use blinking the facts. Labor has assumed an extreme position and the administration, while outspoken heretofore in scolding business, has not lifted a finger about peace in the labor world. Here is a letter from a small manufacturer in the middle west which tells of the dangers in the present labor situation:

"Efficiency in production cannot be obtained when dissension among groups of employees is constant. You will note that I do not say between management and employees. The situation is far more serious than a break between management and employees, for the simple reason that employees, who I believe are in the great majority, resent the intimidation which has been going on, but who dare not speak because they have no spokesman or government or newspaper body behind them.

"Increases Costs

"Management must have non-friction between employees and attention to work. Otherwise goods cannot be produced at reasonable cost regardless of whether wages are high or low. This condition obtains in plants which have no open trouble as well as in those where labor trouble is open.

"President Roosevelt's failure to deal impartially and aggressively with the labor situation is one of the causes of the present unrest. Nobody who is fair about it wants him to do anything to interfere in the slightest with the rights of labor to organize and bargain without interference from any employers, but everybody who is fair about it does want him to see that labor is free from intimidation and abuses of organizers who prey on workmen with the full and frank approval of governmental agencies.

Conditions abroad finally got to the point where restrictive legislation had to be adopted. No new legislation is really needed in America, but an impartial enforcement of the legislation already passed. If Mr. Roosevelt were to take steps in this direction, he would do more to instill confidence in his policies among business men than a dozen messages to congress with words of reassurance in them.

Business men, on the other hand, who are skeptical about the administration's sincerity in its expressed desire to help business can, unhappily enough, point to evidence of what has happened before with public pronouncement designed to encourage business. Take, for instance, this excerpt from the famous 'breathing spell' letter written by the president to Roy W. Howard on Sept. 2, 1935:

"This administration came into power pledged to a very considerable legislative program. It found the condition of the country such as to require drastic and far-reaching action.

"Duty and necessity required us to move on a broad front for more than two years. It seemed to the congress and to me better to achieve these objectives as expeditiously as possible in order that not only business but the public generally might know of those modifications in the conditions and rules of economic enterprise which were involved in our program.

"This basic program, however, has now reached substantial completion and the 'breathing spell' of which you speak is here—very decidedly so."

Vicious Tax Plan

Then what happened? The congress which adjourned in June, 1936, had thrust upon it the most vicious tax plan in the history of America—the undistributed surplus plus tax. Far from being able to understand the rules, the tax made companies guess at dividends and guess at the value of inventories and made a hollow mockery of the idea of saving surpluses for rainy days.

After that "breathing spell" letter, less than a year passed before the president was calling American business men "economic royalists," and on Oct. 31, 1936, he was speaking as follows:

"I should like to have it said of my first administration that in it the forces of selfishness and of lust of power met their match. I should like to have it said of my second administration that in it these forces met their master."

How, in the face of the record, such contradictions between assurance and antagonism, there can be faith in administration promises today to help business is the dilemma of the hour, and yet such faith must be built up if the new business recession is to be overcome. The president produced the apprehensions, and he alone can remove them. He can approve the various constructive plans for tax revision that are pending on Capitol Hill and give the word to go ahead in the present session. He still has a substantial majority in congress ready to follow his wishes. Deeds today will count more in bringing reassurance to business and re-creating employment than all the debates of congress, optimistic messages from the president or his spokesmen. The time has come for action by democracy to prove it can discipline itself voluntarily and without the coercing tactics of a fascist dictatorship.

Calder Will Cut Varsity Squad to About 14 Players

Reduction to 18 Basketball Aspirants Follows Week of Practice

Menasha — The Menasha High school varsity basketball squad of 12 or 14 men will be determined by Monday, according to Coach N. A. Calder. The coach has already narrowed the squad down to a group of 18 men as a result of practice sessions held this week and the final cut will be made by Monday.

L. E. Lindquist, who assisted Coach Calder in football, will have charge of both the freshman and "B" basketball squads. Both will be conducted at the same time. Varsity practices are scheduled for Monday and Tuesday afternoons and Wednesday and Thursday evenings with the "B" and freshmen squads taking over the Butte des Moris gym the other times.

More drill is necessary on fundamentals but the late start necessitates selection of a team and drill on team play as soon as possible. Fundamentals will be emphasized until the middle of next week when the first team drills will be held.

Starting with team drill next Wednesday Coach Calder will have several weeks of practice into which to weld his first five into a working aggregation. The first scrimmage will probably be held next Friday night.

The first game will come a week later with Clintonville opening the conference season here. Coach Ray Heil has a veteran aggregation at the Four-Wheel Drive city and will give the Bluejays a serious test.

Baptist Church Gets New Pastor

Rev. W. L. Harms, Oshkosh, to Take Neenah Pulpit Dec. 1

Neenah—The Rev. W. L. Harms, Oshkosh, who received his doctor of divinity degree from a Philadelphia, Pa., university a few years ago, has accepted the pastorate of the Whiting Memorial Baptist church, effective Dec. 1. Boy Scout Troop Will Hold Overnight Hike

Menasha—Because of the conflict of other events, Boy Scout Troop 44, sponsored by the Congregational church, decided to postpone the troop outing of honor to Thursday, Dec. 9, at their meeting last night at the church rooms. Because of Thanksgiving next week, no meeting will be held Thursday.

Plans for an overnight hike early in December were made at the meeting. Two patrols will meet Monday night. They are the Flying Eagles, Norman Michie, leader, and the Alligators, William Hahnen, patrol leader.

Members of the troop worked on model airplanes last night as part of their handicraft program. A flying model constructed by Norman Michie was tested in the church gym and performed satisfactorily.

Menasha—Work has been resumed by the WPA crew on the Brighton beach sanitary sewer project. The Seventh street work was necessary at once to prevent possible damage to the new high school building from a heavy storm.

Joseph Post Resigns As Head of Committee

Menasha—Joseph Post has resigned as chairman of the troop committee of Boy Scout Troop 3, sponsored by the St. Thomas Episcopal church. He will continue on the troop committee and James H. Kimberly has accepted the appointment as chairman.

Sponsors Ask Cooperation In Yule Lighting Project

Menasha — Community cooperation in a Christmas lighting and decoration project is being sought by the joint sponsors, Menasha Garden Club, Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Community Business Men's association. Final plans and additional reports were made at a meeting at the Menasha public library last night.

The Menasha Garden Club will be hostesses at a Christmas picnic and auction bridge party at the Menasha library auditorium at 8 o'clock this Friday evening. Each club member will be responsible for one table of bridge. The proceeds will be used for the community decoration and home lighting prize fund and the cooperation of all garden club members is assured.

"Say Merry Christmas with Lights" was the theme of discussion at the meeting of the Menasha Garden club last Monday at the home of Miss Edna Robertson from which the project originated. The Junior Chamber of Commerce has gone on record offering cooperation to the Garden club in the home lighting contest and to the business men's association in the hopes for an artistic and unified arrangement of trees and lights for the business district.

Cash awards in the home decoration contest will be given by the Jaces and the Garden club. Entry must be made on official entry blanks by midnight, Dec. 21. Lights must be turned on Dec. 24 and every succeeding night, including Dec. 28, from 6 to 9:30.

Menasha school children will engage in a slogan contest for the community decoration committee. Miss Celia Boyce has been appointed to conduct the contest to promote Menasha spirit during the holidays. Miss Henrietta Hall, through the Garden club, has offered a prize of a pen and pencil set for the best slogan. The set is on display at the Sulp and Hedberg drug store.

Jaces to be Judges

The slogan will be judged by the Jaces. Menasha public grade and junior high, St. John's school and St. Patrick's school students have entered slogans. Frank Liesen of the Valley Press will contribute posters for community use with the slogan chosen.

A point system has been set up upon which to judge the decorations. All must be arranged to be judged from the street. Merits of individual displays are to be considered from the standpoint of facilities available and type of home. Design and originality will count 30 points, Christmas appeal, 20 points, and artistic coloring and arrangements of lights, 50 points.

Suggestions are for lighted doorways or entrance, lighted trees, flood lighting of house, plantings and decorations, winter lighting, and displays depicting the Christmas spirit. William Hehl, Wauwatosa, an authority on outside lighting, stresses the desirability of simplicity and warns against a conglomeration of too many lights, colors, and subject material which is apt to give a cluttered effect.

G. O. P. Charter Group Is Planned

Samps Talks to Sixth District Leaders at Fond du Lac

Menasha — Plans for the organization of a Winnebago county Republican charter group were set in motion at a Sixth district meeting last night at Fond du Lac.

Edward J. Samp, Madison, state committeeman, explained the charter plan which is being adopted throughout the state. Forty-five persons attended the meeting. Two per cent of the Republican vote cast at the last election must be organized before a charter can be obtained.

Discussion of the proposed constitution brought up by Chester D. Shepard, Menasha, Sixth district leader. A state constitution meeting at Madison tomorrow will be attended by Shepard as well as several other Oshkosh Republican leaders.

354 Jobless Census Blanks Have Been Returned at Neenah

Neenah—Out of about 3,550 unemployed census blanks which have been delivered, approximately 374 had been filled out and returned to the post office at noon today. It was reported by Clarence Schultz, postmaster.

The post office is having considerable difficulty in cards which are returned incorrectly filled out, the people forgetting to write in their middle name, give their ages and sign the cards with their signatures. All questions asked on the cards should be printed when answered except the signatures and they should be written as the persons usually sign their names. It was pointed out.

Because the close of the census is Saturday, persons are requested to go to the postoffice and fill out their cards if they haven't already done so. Help, supplied by the Neenah-Menasha office of the Wisconsin State employment service, will be offered Saturday.

Pension Charges Debated Again at Meeting of Board

Supervisors Get Second Communication From Department Employee

(Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau)

Oshkosh—Accusations of partiality aired this week before the county board by R. J. Dunham, pension investigator, against L. J. Howman, pension administrator, were brought to life again Thursday, when Mr. Dunham communicated again with the board.

He stated that in the course of his employment, he had become the repository of certain valuable information and was sincere in laying this before the board. Terming the "legal ramifications" of much importance he told the board he was unable to retain legal counsel. While repeating he was willing to stand by his original charges, Mr. Dunham told the board he was unwilling to appear before the board without legal counsel or be supported by a "second rate" attorney.

He stated he was still in a weakened condition as result of illness and asserted he faced the possibility of a breakdown if forced to go through a public hearing.

Concluding his second communication to the board, Mr. Dunham advised:

"Procure the documentary evidence at your disposal, after I make a definite statement which it is believed will be considered incriminating enough for you to take the proper action in this matter."

Mixed emotions on the part of county supervisors greeted the second communication from Mr. Dunham.

Said E. F. Dornbrook, Menasha: "I believe, in spite of what Mr. Dunham says, there are plenty of good attorneys available in the county. There are plenty of good attorneys in Menasha, and if he can't find one in Menasha, he will find him one in Oshkosh. Frankly, I believe that if Mr. Dunham doesn't want to 'come clean' on the charges he already made to the county board, I am in favor of dropping the matter."

R. M. Heckner, Menasha, said: "We know Mr. Dunham was recently under medical care and not in the best health. I believe the charges were made in all sincerity, and they appear to be the work of an educated man. I am not sure in what capacity our district attorney is to act. We don't want a blot on the county—we want to clear his up. But I believe in fair play and at getting the truth for the benefit of the county."

Mr. Heckner also stated he thought it was not fair to put Mr. Dunham on the defense. L. W. Clark, Oshkosh, commented he thought the pension department was under fire, hence was the defendant.

At this point District Attorney Magnusson entered the discussion.

"What this amounts to is that a hearing must be held before the board to determine if Mr. Howman is to be re-employed. Neither side can be represented by counsel. Both can refuse to appear before the board if they wish. But before this, I believe the board should make a preliminary examination."

More than 100 Winnebago county and state officials, including 44 members of the county board attended the annual inspection of the county asylum and county farm Thursday noon and were shown about the institution by George V. Grueder, superintendent and Mrs. Velta Grueder, matron.

J. J. Pinkerton, Neenah, spoke for the board of trustees when he expressed appreciation to Mr. and Mrs. Grueder and the county board for the excellent condition of the institution and the co-operation extended.

Miss Murphy, inspector for the state board of control, told the gathering she visited nearly every institution in Wisconsin and could truthfully state the Winnebago county asylum ranked as a "top-notch."

The main address was given by the Rev. Walter Courtney, pastor of the Presbyterian church, Neenah, who reviewed world conditions as they exist today and warned of the danger to democracies from communism and collective states.

Gilbert E. Seaman, superintendent of Winnebago state hospital, predicted that government attention now focused on eradication of social diseases would soon reflect a corresponding decline in the number of dementia praecox cases to the extent of 40 per cent.

This decline in the most prevalent form of mental disorder, he said, would mean a great saving to county and state institutions.

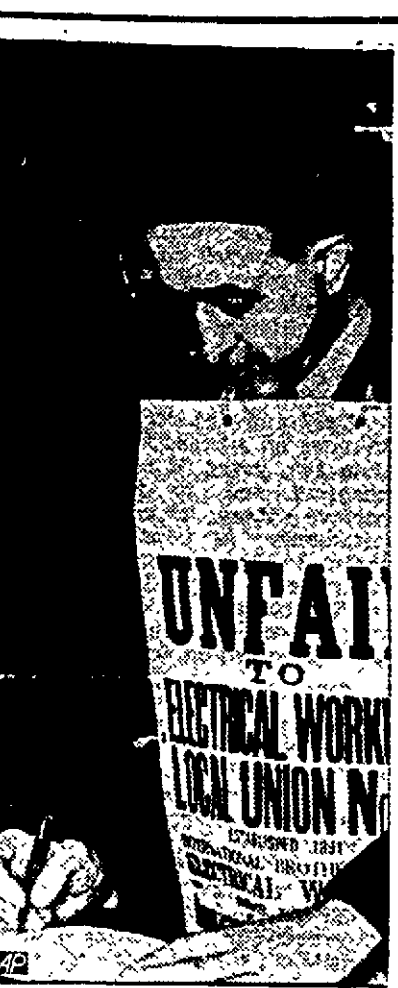

"Patients get the best of care and this institution deserves praise for its wonderful condition of wards and the care of the sick," he said.

Among those present besides the county board members and J. F. Shea, chairman, were:

Judge Henry P. Hughes, Judge D. E. McDonald, Lewis C. Magnusson, district attorney, Sheriff Paul Neubauer, Arthur E. Hedke, county clerk, E. E. Fuller, county treasurer, George E. Young, register of deeds, William H. Miller, county service officer, E. M. Bird, county highway commissioner, Eva C. Monson, county superintendent of schools, Katherine Weinman, county nurse, L. J. Howman, pension administrator, Cava Wilson, Sunnyview sanatorium superintendent, Frank W. Schneider, clerk of courts and R. C. Heffernan, county agent.

HURRIES HIS ANSWER

Adolf Nolage, 55, jobless electrical worker now spending his time picking, didn't waste any time in filling out his card for the national unemployment census. He said, "this picketing is work but there's no pay in it."

Methodists Will Use Two Buildings To Hold Services

Organize Committees to Plan Erection of New Church at Neenah

Neenah — The city hall auditorium and the Neenah Boys' Brigade building will be used by the congregation of the First Methodist church in which to hold services Sunday, according to the Rev. Henry Johnson, pastor. The First Methodist church and Wesley hall were destroyed by a 7,500 fire Wednesday morning.

Church officials are currently organizing into committees which will take charge of preliminary plans for the erection of a new church. A preliminary committee has been appointed to make a complete analysis of the situation, and detailed findings have been presented to the general official board, which is comprised of the board of trustees, who are custodians of the property, and the official board. The committee also outlined the estimated loss and made recommendations.

The official board was requested to authorize the board of trustees to appoint a chairman of the building committee and members, and after services Sunday a meeting will be held to approve of the appointments. The building committee will have charge of planning and financing the proposed new church.

Services Sunday will be at 10:30 in the city hall as will the adult Sunday school classes, while the children's Sunday school classes will be in the Brigade building.

Admit 40 Candidates Into Order of Eagles

Neenah—Forty candidates were initiated into the Fraternal Order of Eagles at a meeting Thursday night at the Eagles hall.

About 250 members attended the meeting and heard Lyall T. Bergs, Madison, state president of the Eagles and district attorney of Dane county, give history of the fraternity, list the things the order has done and plans to do, including old age pension, mother's pension and mothers relief.

Dr. William T. J. Doyle, Fond du Lac, was in charge of the meeting, and the Fond du Lac degree team officiated at the initiation services.

'New Fires' Is Timely Production at Neenah

Neenah—The 3-act comedy, "New Fires," which will be staged by the Neenah High school Thespian society Wednesday night, Dec. 8, in the auditorium, is certainly timely.

The novel, "New Fires," recently written from the play will not be published until shortly after the Thespian society produces the play. It was reported today by Miss Ruth Chalmers, director.

Rehearsals on the three acts have been completed and finishing touches are being made. Dress rehearsal will be held the evening preceding the production.

It Is Said--

That the encouragement and cheers offered Tarzan Krause, particularly by three women on the north reserved seat section, at the wrestling show at the S. A. Cook armory Wednesday night was to no avail for Krause is a deaf mute. He is adept at the sign language and can read lips if the speaker forms words distinctly. Krause just returned from six months wrestling in Texas and was wearing cowboy boots that cost $21.

That Marvin Miller, St. Mary High coach, borrowed a book on football coaching written by Knute Rockne from Paul Little, Kaukauna coach, last summer, hoping to prize the Kaws with some Rockne stuff. Last night Miller told Little at the sports writers and coaches banquet at Appleton that he would not return the book until he found the chapter on stopping punt returns. The Kaws defeated St. Mary 14 to 0 on two sparkling 50 yard punt returns by Peterson.

A total of about 1,300 shots will be required for Neenah High school pupils, while more than 800 will have been given to grade school students. The Schick test is followed by a control test and reading.

The purpose of the tests is to determine whether students are immune or susceptible to diphtheria.

The dance is an all-student affair and only students will be allowed. Other guests must secure their tickets from the office of Principal John H. Holman before they will be admitted.

The money raised through the dance will be used by the club to purchase a brooder which will be placed on a farm on the outskirts of the city. Pastor Denounces Seating of Black On Supreme Court

Says Protestantism Doesn't Tolerate Ku Klux Klan Principles

Neenah—Declaring that Protestantism doesn't tolerate the principles of the Ku Klux Klan, Dr. C. Wesley Israel, minister of the First Methodist church, Aurora, Ill., told members of four Neenah service clubs Wednesday noon at the Valley Inn, that he personally "didn't approve of the appointment of Hugo Black to such a high position as a justice of the Supreme court."

Dr. Israel's denunciation of the supreme court justice and the Ku Klux Klan was made during a conference of a good-will team of the Chicago Round Table before a joint meeting of the Kiwanis, Lions, Rotary, and Business and Professional Women's clubs.

The good-will team was comprised of the Rev. Basil R. Reuss, O. Praem, head of the history department, St. Norbert's college, West De Pere, Dr. Jacob Singer, rabbi of Temple Mizpah, Chicago, Ill., and Dr. Israel.

Preceding the discussion before the service clubs, members of the good-will team talked to assemblies of Neenah and Menasha High school students in the mornings.

In the evening held a conference at a public mass meeting at the Neenah High school. The Rev. Anselm M. Keefe, Ph. D., pastor of St. Norbert's college, West De Pere, substituted for Father Reuss in the evening discussion.

In replying to Father Reuss' question as to whether Protestants fostered the principles of the Ku Klux Klan, Dr. Israel said that he was ashamed to say that southern ministers of his own denomination were leading and backing the movement, and he added, however, that it distressed him to acknowledge this.

He stated that the principles of that organization "were not inherent in Protestantism, for Protestants cannot tolerate those principles contrary to American ideals."

Concerning the Black appointment, Dr. Israel further stated that "if Black at one time was a member of the Ku Klux Klan, providing he joined while a mature man and not an adolescent, there is no telling what he will do later in life."

In 1923 there were 24 million members in that organization in the United States, and Chief Organizer Clark received $40,000 each month from dues plus the interest on the sale of hoods made by a company which he partially owned," the minister reported. "Today, however, a great many of the principles upon which this organization was founded have died out," he concluded.

The discussion was not a debate between leaders of three different faiths but was, as Father Reuss expressed it, "for amity, justice, understanding and cooperation between Protestants, Jews and Catholics, working together for the things that count, and, if disagreeing, doing so tolerantly."

Clearing up Fallacies
Father Reuss pointed out to the members of the service clubs that none of them were "yielding any part of their faith in these discussions" but were clearing up fallacies existing in the minds of members of one faith about that of other faiths in order that they may appreciate each other's purposes and become interested in working together on common tasks.

"Crowded into petty trades and banking when they weren't permitted to till the soil or to go to the Jews were forced into fields in which they could amass wealth," Dr. Singer said in reply to Father Reuss' question, "Why do people fear Jews who have the alleged, peculiar talent of amassing money, and is it not a logical and sensible objection not to allow them in a community and have social intercourse with Christians?"

Dr. Singer, however, firmly denied that this alleged talent is peculiar to the Jews, saying that less than four per cent of the Jews engaged in banking are Jews.

Before "introducing" Dr. Singer, Father Reuss explained to the members of the four clubs that "we are not here to mince words but to speak frankly in order to induce you to think. People have become in the habit of labeling other persons, things and religious instead of reasoning things out."

Tells of Squalor
The rabbi told of poverty and squalor in which Jews are forced to live, not only in this country but in Europe. Since 1917, however, the Jews have led a "back to the soil movement," 300,000 going into agriculture besides more than 500,000 into heavy industries. "Today, the Jews in the cities have been pushed into the unemployed ranks," he said, and the rabbi added that "the mere public impression of Jews as Shylocks is only fiction, while fiction to fact is absolutely shocking."

Dr. Israel asked of Father Reuss, "Why don't Catholics encourage the reading of the Bible, permit the interpretation of the Bible by the people themselves, and provide allowance for individuality and freedom of expression?"

"The Catholic church urges its members to read the Bible; in fact, the church offers an indulgence to its members who do so," Father Reuss replied.

"Although the church does not stifle individuality, it does not allow its members to interpret the Bible as they wish, for the Bible is the inspired words of God Almighty, and He did not leave these words to be judged by us," the priest continued.

"To prevent distortion, which can easily be done by unlearned and unlettered taking one scripture and interpreting it literally, the church does not allow its members to make their own interpretations," he said, and he used as an example the

Begin Tuberculin Testing Of Menasha School Pupils

Menasha—First steps in the second annual tuberculin tests of students in Menasha schools were taken when authorization slips were sent to the parents of all children in the vocational, high, junior high and parochial schools. The study of the tuberculosis situation in Winnebago county, which was begun in 1936, is being continued by the county medical society and the Menasha city health department.

After the parents have signed and returned the authorization slips, the tests will be started after the Thanksgiving holidays. All of the physicians will cooperate in the program.

Last year 1,274 students in grades 1 to 6 were tested. Forty-five positive reactors were found who were given physical examinations, intensive follow-up, and x-ray and hospitalization where necessary. Grade children missed last year will be included in the 1937 program.

Plans for the testing program were made yesterday at a meeting of the local committee, which included Dr. P. T. O'Brien, chairman; A. J. J. Young, high school principal; F. B. Young, superintendent of schools; S. E. Crockett, director of the vocational school; Mrs. Sigrid Dudley, health instructor, and H. O. Haugh, city health officer.

The Winnebago county board of supervisors, in cooperation with the County Medical society, has made

Council Directs Police to Enforce Bike Ordinances

Aldermen Defer Action on Proposed Bicycle Licensing Law

Neenah—Strict enforcement of current bicycle traffic ordinances in Neenah was ordered by the city council when it was voted to hold over the proposed bicycle licensing ordinance at a meeting Thursday night at the city hall.

The council instructed the police department to enforce city and state laws prohibiting bicyclists from operating without lights and reflectors at night, riding on sidewalks and other traffic violations.

Aldermen differed as to whether the proposed bicycle licensing ordinance should be passed. Alderman William Schmidt said he doubted the value of the ordinance, while Alderman Carl E. Loehning thought that the penalty provided in the proposed ordinance should be changed.

Considerable discussion resulted, especially concerning punishment of children who may violate the ordinance. It was suggested that an informal meeting be held during which this phase of the ordinance be cleared.

Folkman Raymond J. Carlson informed the council that the licensing of bicycles would curtail theft, and City Attorney John W. O'Leary said that bicyclists would have to install lights on their wheels; otherwise, they wouldn't be granted a license for their bicycles.

A petition was submitted to the council signed by six property owners on Washington street from Cedar street requesting sidewalk, water mains, sanitary sewers, grading of the street and installation of concrete curbs and gutters.

The council purchased a police squad car from the Tri City Motor company for $472. Emil Harder, chairman of the finance committee, reported that since the last council meeting the city incurred 98 accounts for a sum of $5,056.86.

Alderman Richard O'Brien, chairman of the committee on celebrations, requested $25 for a municipal Christmas tree to be placed on the island. The council voted in favor of Alderman O'Brien's request, giving the committee power to act.

Exhibit of World Articles Attracts Many Persons to Y

Neenah—International exhibit at the Neenah-Menasha Y.W.C.A. as a part of its World Fellowship Week observance attracted many persons this week with its outstanding display of modern and antique articles from all over the world. Displays varied from a large copper pan from Denmark dated 250 years ago to the most modern linen from Germany. Crafts of royalty and peasant were represented by the linen cloth of drawn work made by the present wife of the former kaiser of Germany and the finest of linens woven by peasant folk. Varying interests were presented in the powder horn and prayer rug, the mystical Santa Clara riding on the ogat and camel's blanket.

Dolls from many countries interested the children and included also in the 500 articles loaned by more than 30 persons were jewelry, national costumes, books and magazines, silver, copper, brass, iron, hand woven and decorated linen, wood carvings and iron paintings, carved cork and ivory.

Young Republicans Will Name Officers
Menasha—Annual meeting and election of officers of the Young Republicans of Winnebago county will be held next Tuesday evening, Nov. 23, at the Memorial building, according to Leonard Cook, Oshkosh, chairman. Arrangements for the meeting are being made by Jerry Grode. The meeting will start at 8 o'clock.

A chairman, vice chairman, vice chairwoman and a secretary-treasurer will be selected at the meeting to serve for the next year. The executive committee of five to serve with the officers will also be elected.

Selection of delegates to represent the county at the state Young Republics meeting at Waukesha on Dec. 4, will also be made. The county will probably have nine votes at the state meeting. Refreshments will be served following the meeting.

Thanksgiving Program Is Planned at Library
Menasha—Special Thanksgiving day festivities, including stories and other features, have been planned by Mrs. B. A. Berglund, children's librarian, for the children's story hour at 2:30 Saturday afternoon at the Eliza D. Smith public library.

Average attendance at the previous story hours this season has been 89 and a record group is expected this Saturday. As a part of Good Book week observance, a large collection of new children's books will be ready for circulation in the children's room on Saturday.

H. Redlin Rolls 'Perfect' Game In K-C Pin Loop

Attempts to Steal Game By Camouflage Methods

Mr. Culbertson is conducting, through this column, a national examination of bridge players. Rate yourself by subtracting from 100 the points for each wrong answer.

BY ELY CULBERTSON
Yesterday's question was: Question 45: You are East, defended against a four heart contract, reached on this bidding:
South West North East
1 heart Pass 2 hearts 2 spades
4 hearts Pass Pass Pass
Your hand and dummy are as follows:

NORTH (dummy)
♥ 10 6 4
♣ A 6 4 2
EAST
♠ A Q 9 8 7
♦ K Q 9 5
♣ K 10

West leads the spade jack. What card do you, East, play?
Answer: You should play the nine of spades, or at any rate should lead to play the ace or queen. Your partner's lead of the jack showed that he had fewer than four spades, since with that number he would have led fourth best. Declarer's king, therefore, cannot be blank. There is no reason to suppose that partner's jack was a singleton. If you play the ace on the jack, declarer, who very likely started with the K-10-small, will have a finessing position against your queen and, thus, will lose only one spade trick instead of two. This is simply an example of economy of honors. (The points demerit for playing ace or queen of spades to the first trick).

TODAY'S QUESTION.
Question 46: Rubber bridge. You are South, not vulnerable. Opponents are vulnerable. The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South
Pass Pass 1 heart 1

You, South, hold:

♠ A 10 8 ♥ K J 10 6 ♦ J 4 3 ♣ A K 9

What call do you make over East's one heart bid?

TODAY'S HAND
South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

♠ 10 8 5 4
♥ Q 10 6 3 2
♦ J 9 5
♣ K 7

EAST
♠ A 9 8 5 4
♥ A 8 5 2
♦ 8 3 2
♣ A Q 10 6 4

SOUTH
♠ A Q 7 5 3 2
♣ A Q 10 6 4

The bidding:
South West North East
Pass 2 no trump Pass Pass clubs 4 diamonds 4 spades Pass

West's first overall was, of course, an effort to steal the game by camouflage methods.

The defeat of the four spade contract was a triumph for partnership confidence. West opened the diamond king and, when his partner played the deuce, West had such perfect faith in East's judgment that he did even consider continuing with diamonds. He knew that East was a careful player who thought before he followed suit. Hence, that diamond deuce was not merely a cast-iron warning, more than that, it conveyed the idea that East could stand a shift of leads. With a lime faith, West shifted at the

Uncle Ray's Corner

A Strange Fair

Farmers usually get up early, but on the twelfth of last month many of them got up earlier than usual in the Midlands of England. It was one of the great days of the year for them—it was the day of "the Mop" at Stratford-on-Avon.

Aroundabout at an English "Mop" Fair.

Many farmers in the Midlands live in homes with thatched roofs, and timbered sides. Others have houses which are fairly modern. Whatever kind of house they lived in, they left it that day to go to the Mop. Thousands of people flocked into the city where Shakespeare was born.

The Mop is a yearly fair which grew from a strange old custom. On a certain day each autumn, household servants had the custom of trying to change their place of work. Women went to the town with mops in their hands, also with buckets. The mop was a sign that the woman was willing to work, and work hard.

People who wanted new servants also went to town on that day, and talked with those who wanted to work. They made bargains, after setting the yearly wage.

Patri Outlines Rules Of Smoking Etiquette

Young people who must smoke to be comfortable ought to observe the few rules that society has laid down to insure the comfort of those who cannot be comfortable while others smoke.

When visiting it is bad manners to begin smoking if nobody else is smoking. It is not polite to ask your hostess if you can smoke if nobody else is smoking. Wait. Your hostess may object to smoking under any circumstances, but if you ask her permission she feels obligated to give it. But she won't feel obligated to invite you to her house again, and that may not be just what you would like.

When you smoke be sure you have a tray at hand to care for the dead match and the ashes and the remains. Don't scatter the ashes on the floor and say that they will help the rugs. They don't. Don't shake them into the folds or draperies or behind the cushions of your chair. The hostess likes those draperies and cushions, and they have cost her money and effort. And don't use the fireplace as an ash receiver. A fireplace ought to be a beautiful, reposeful spot, and refuse of sorts is no addition to its atmosphere.

Don't smoke at the table until your hostess indicates that smoking is in order. The person who lights his cigarette in the middle of a course is committing an outrage. Don't put the ashes in your coffee cup nor douse the smoldering end in it either. Your hostess does not like the smell or the flavor of the dead-and-done-for smoke in her cup and glasses. Use the ash tray.

Above all, don't rest your burning cigarette on the edges of the furniture, the window sills, or anywhere save on the proper tray. Burning the tablecloths and napkins, the upholstery, the draperies and the bathroom shelves is just too much to be borne with patience.

Young people who smoke should not inhale the smoke. That is what does the harm. Nor should they light cigarette after cigarette end-to-end. That is smoking to excess, and if it does not hurt them it offends other people because it is a breach of good taste, is considered

Imitating Other Types Poor Policy

BY ELSIE PIERCE

I hesitate to write about "types" out of fear that some may interpret what I say as advocating standardization. That connotation cannot possibly remain with those who read this column frequently, for they know how much individuality has been urged.

But, nature does "type" us, just as she "types" flowers. There are roses and sunflowers, dahlias, and buttercups. Each flower has its own attractive features. We humans have our races, the major classification being white, red, yellow. Then there's the matter of stature and personality and coloring—the refined divisions of coloring.

Nature is a very consistent craftsman and artist. There is distinctive beauty in the unity of her creations. Then why should we attempt to destroy that unity by imitating other types, or worse yet, other races?

A Foreign Note
Many Americans, and I think this is particularly true of young girls, like to adopt a foreignism of speech, of manner, of dress. They fool perhaps that this sets them apart from the crowd. For instance a teacher of literature in a midwestern college confides that during a course of study on Indian lyrics, he invited a brilliant, cultured Indian woman to the class for a lecture. It made the lesson more interesting but it also started two young women (in their late teens) on an imitation campaign.

Their fluffy curls were brushed to hang dank and straight; they started dressing like Indians reading all the Indian literature they could find. Imagine a young American or English girl with blonde or brown hair, with blue or brown eyes, with a light or even olive complexion, looking like an Indian, even though she wears their colorful blouses and beads and braid her hair. It isn't nature's way, it strikes a discordant note, it isn't true to type.

Long ago, a silly young cousin of mine (about thirteen at the time) was told that she had a complexion of a China doll—keep it that way! That comment must have remained with her, and though she little understood it, we found her attempting make-up to make her eyes look almond-shaped, her hair-comb brushed-up, pomp effect of the Chinese. Fortunately, it was easy enough for us to snap her out of her delusion by a series of before and after flashes before her own mirror.

My Neighbor Says—

When blossoms on flowering begonias begin to drop pinch back plants to places where blooming sprays start and begonias will blossom again.

Do not throw away mushroom stems. Boil, drain and add liquid in which they are cooked to cream of mushroom soup.

When packing dresses for traveling lay tissue paper or cheese cloth twice the length of dress on table, lay dresses on this and cover with tissue or cheese cloth. Fold, pack last in suit case and you will find dresses will not wrinkle.

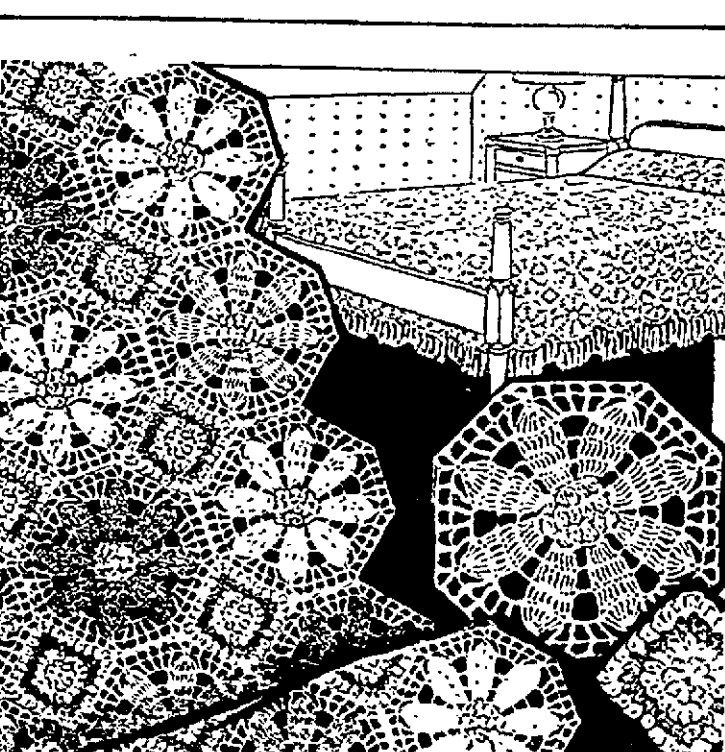

Make steamed puddings several days before they are to be used. Store them in a cold place and, when it is time to serve them, reheat them for 30 minutes in a covered mold or a double boiler.

It seems to me. It comforts aching nerves. It is a medicine, a drug. Healthy young people do not need it. It would be much better if they decided they didn't want it.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamp, addressed envelope for reply.

Understanding Necessary For Happiness in Family

BY DOROTHY DIX

The strangest thing in the world is how little the members of most families really know each other. In nine homes out of ten the husbands and wives and parents and children are just as little acquainted with each other as if they were strangers who did not speak each other's language and who were meeting for the first time.

DOROTHY DIX

It seems impossible, but it is true, that men and women can live together in the intimacy of married life for fifty years without ever understanding each other, or getting the slightest inkling of what motivates each other and makes them do what they do. It is an even more incredible fact that parents can bear children, rear them to maturity and know less about them than they do about the office boy or the cook. While as for brothers and sisters, all they ever find out about each other is their worst points.

Why this should be the case, it is hard to say. Perhaps the family circle is so small that we are too close to the members of our family to get a perspective on their various characteristics. Perhaps familiarity has robbed them of the novelty which would make them interesting and we just take them for granted. Mother is just Mother, and a shock of surprise to the children compliments and tell her how wonderful she is and how much he loves her is just because he is of a repressed nature and, as Barrie said of himself, "Has to wrap his legs around a table before he can even write 'darling.'" He thinks he proves his love by working himself to death to make her comfortable.

The husband isn't sufficiently acquainted with his wife to know that the reason she is disgruntled and dissatisfied, peevish and complaining is just because she is beginning to have a fuss made over her housekeeper she is how her husband would be on Poverty Flat instead of Easy Street except for her marvelous management.

The reason there are so many male and female philanderers and so much divorce is because so many lonely, heart-hungry men and women are hunting for mates who will understand them and who won't stay perpetual strangers to them.

Perhaps the worst phase of families not getting acquainted consists in father and mothers not bothering to study their children and find out what abilities and talents they have. That would save so many wasted years, prevent so many square pegs out of round holes that they can never fit.

But parents don't trouble to do it. When the average boy and girl consult their fathers and mothers about what occupation they should take up, father and mother haven't an idea to suggest. Johnny is left with his hands or quick with his mind; whether Sammy is a born trader or a congenial easy mark; whether nature intended Mary for Hollywood or the kitchen. So the poor, blundering children take the wrong turn of the road and throw away a life-time hunting for the short cut their parents could have shown them if only they had been acquainted.

What a pity people don't get acquainted with their own families. (Copyright, 1937)

GOOD TASTE TODAY

BY EMILY POST

CHEESES AND A TABLECLOTH

Dear Mrs. Post: I was very careful to look in your new book to see what you said about serving cheese at dinner. My wife has been looking down her nose at me for some time for insisting that we have cheese for those who like it as I do. Much to my genuine disappointment you mention cheese only in the disguise of straws of soufles suggested as an accompaniment of salad. Does this mean that real honest to goodness cheese, as such, is tabu on a dinner menu? A souffle takes an expert, and anyway what about us cheese lovers? I can't imagine eating a sweet dessert instead of a sherry Siltion or roquefort or camembert! If my wife notices your omission of cheese at dinner, why then she'll not only look down her nose at me, but it's O-U-T with the cheese.

Answer: I think you must have read no further than a formal dinner party list, in which cheese straws—cheese croquettes do belong. But I'm sure had you looked further you would have found plenty of descriptions of cheese. At any rate you can rest assured that cheese is always the feature of the salad course; rarely if ever is salad served at informal dinner without it. At your own dinners (unless very formal) keep on douching it day after day and week after week the way my own father used to do in the day of my early childhood. And of course if you serve a Pont l'Eveque or a Camembert not only may you, but you must use a knife! Whether you have cheese made into a souffle or melted on crackers, or whether you eat it as it comes on crackers or on slices of apples or any other pet combination of your own is absolutely correct. I understand that your wife might want to hold her nose if, for example, you like Gorgonzola! But I can't imagine her looking down her nose—except to tease you!

Dear Mrs. Post: Will you please explain about the hemming of a damask tablecloth? How wide should the hem be, and is the cloth turned all around, and is it ever hemstitched?

Answer: Damask cloth ought never to be hemstitched, nor are the selvedge sides hemmed. The "raw" ends are hemmed with very close stitches. A tablecloth hem is about half an inch wide. The reason why stitches must be very fine and close is in order to hold the hem perfectly firm and straight after it's washed.

Moscow—(AP)—A woman and two men were sentenced to death today in a Leningrad school case on charges of mistreating students and endeavoring to provoke dissatisfaction with the soviet regime. Eight others must serve 10 to 20 years in prison.

Plight of Potato Area Will be Investigated

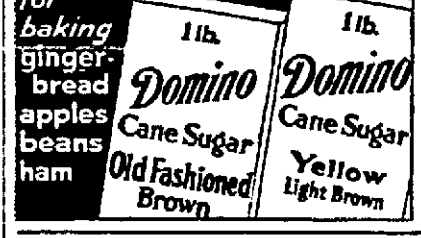

Washington—(AP)—Immediate investigation of the plight of Portage county, Wis., potato growers, who have appealed for aid, was ordered yesterday by the farm credit administration. Senator F. Ryan Duffy, Wisconsin, was informed by FCA officials the regional office in Wisconsin had

HONEY 'N' APPLE ROLL
With marvelous flavor and aroma

NO FUSS and bother chilling ingredients. No difficulty cutting shortening into flour. Spry's soft, creamy consistency makes it blend with other ingredients like magic. And your pastry is heavenly—flaky, tender, breaking at the touch of a fork, melting in your mouth. And what filling—honey... spices... apples... blending into one divine flavor! Do make it today. But don't stop there. Use Spry for all your baking. See if the most expensive shortening ever gave such light, fine-grained, delicious cakes. And they're mixed in half the time. You'll love Spry-fried foods, too. Crisp, golden, delicate, so digestible a child can eat them. Spry stays fresh indefinitely on the kitchen shelf. No need to keep in refrigerator.

For Your Thanksgiving Table Gold Medal Turkey

These birds are all thoroughly dressed. No feathers or pin feathers, no excess waste. They are ready for the pan. Remember that the meat is so much sweeter and more tender when dressed and drawn at the time of killing. There is no gall left on the liver, thus it can be used for part of the delicious dressing.

Each year there is much round dressed poultry on the market, which is offered at seemingly low prices. But, when you consider your work, the excess waste, (of intestines and head), which is weighed in, you can readily see that it is cheaper to get Hopfensperger's thoroughly cleaned birds and save money and work for yourself.

Our prices will be no higher than the ordinary poultry.

How to Be a "Reg'lar" Fellow — Without Pills

There's a better way to get on the "regular" side than by overstimulating your intestines with cathartics. Give up the vest-pocket cures and eat a natural laxative food—Kellogg's All-Bran.

Instead of abusing your intestines, All-Bran supplies TWO things they need. First, it's a good source of vitamin "B2"—the vitamin that tones up your intestinal tract. Second, All-Bran provides "bulk"—it absorbs water and softens like a sponge. This water-softened mass aids elimination. Eat this crunchy, toasted cereal with milk or cream and fruits—or in cooking. But however you eat it, use it regularly: eat two tablespoons of All-Bran and drink plenty of water. If you do this every day you can avoid common constipation and cathartics, too! Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. At every grocer's.

The Characters
Nina, a nice girl with flaxen hair, meets a young man at a party. David drives her home, confessing he crashed the party and is an automobile salesman. He has copper hair and a dog.
Honey, Nina's plump, youthful mother, brings home a new husband, unannounced.
Richard, Nina's stepfather, Cordelia, Nina's closest friend.

Chapter Three
A Drink To the Bride
"It's true all right I'm happy to say," Richard drew Honey to him in a very sweet way.

Something that had felt all taut and constricted--her heart may be relaxed in Nina's breast.
Honey was saying, "And I have the heavenliest last name"
"What is it, darling?"
"Challoner."
"Oh, my, yes. It's very, very something, isn't it?" Richard Chaloner, I like it, and 'Honey Chaloner,' too.
They were still standing in a little huddle in the upstairs hall. "Would you two grinning thing

Duffy Advocates Change in Surplus Profits Tax Rule

LaFollette Holds Tolerant Attitude Toward Proposed Modification

By RUBY A. BLACK

Washington—Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., of Madison is open-minded on modification of the undistributed corporate surplus tax, while Senator F. Ryan Duffy of Fond du Lac has been advocating one modification since last June, before the agitation for change had mounted to such terrific proportions.

Duffy, in the last session, introduced a bill to exempt up to 30 percent of the undistributed surplus from the tax, providing that amount was spent in expansion to give employment. He is willing to consider further modification to include debt payments in the exempted portion, as suggested by Senator Pat Harrison, chairman of the senate finance committee.

Believes in Tax Principle
LaFollette who is a member of the finance committee, reiterated that he holds in the principle of the tax, that he will listen carefully to facts presented to show the need of modification, to show any inequities that it may cause, and to show how the change can be effected to help business, not reduce revenues unduly, and keep the principle in the law.

Not since repeal of the "pink slip" provision of the income tax law requiring public report on gross income, not taxable income, and tax paid, was rushed through the congress has such a barrage of agitation for a law change been seen here. Senators and congressmen are rushing to demand repeal or modification.

Duffy calls attention to the fact that he introduced his bill before the agitation began, and adds that he does not favor repeal of the law, merely modification to stimulate employment and relieve the "little business man" from burdens.

mind coming in and giving me a little data?"

But when the three of them were settled in a row, with Nina in the middle, on Honey's sinky, pillow-strewn couch, it appeared that there was very little data to give out.

They had met at a dinner party given for Honey, in Chicago, by Ellen Surtees, her hostess. They had fallen in love, immediately, and had been unable to figure out any reason why they should wait to do something about it.

"Just one of those things," murmured Nina, smiling.

But she thought: "Oh, no. No reason at all. . . only me; and the question of whether they're really suited to each other; and the difference in their ages (he must be at least 10 years younger than Honey); and a few thousand other little items to be considered."

Richard's "Nervousness"
"You do think it's fun, our having done it and surprised you, don't you, darling?" Was there a pleading look on Honey's blue eyes? Did she know she had been bad?

"I do," answered Nina, promptly. "When did it happen?" It hurt her terribly to think of her mother standing somewhere, saying: "No, without her. . . giving away the whole rest of her life to a stranger."

"Day before yesterday."

"And you'll be going away now for a while, I suppose." Suddenly a terrible thought struck her. "Look here, you two aren't going to live in Chicago, are you?"

Richard Challenor said, quickly: "No, my dear. I should have told you that right off. I'm not going to take your mother away from you. . . only for a few weeks."

"A few?" Nina breathed again. "A few?" She crossed over to a table, lifted the glass over to her and to do things to the bottles and glasses.

Richard came to help her. "Of course I know that I don't intend to beat Honey, or make her miserable, but you have no way of knowing it. You're being a marvelous sport, and I certainly appreciate it. . . I may as well confess that I was terribly nervous."

"That was his first speech. He hadn't been nervous at all; eager to make a good impression, certainly. . . a little amused perhaps, but never nervous."

Nina felt inclined to dislike him for the insincerity, and as he bent over Honey with her glass, she looked at him, critically, for the first time. Sleek, dark hair and eyes, and a thin line of moustache on his upper lip. . . A deep chest and broad shoulders, covered by an almost too-well-tailored blue suit. . . Custom made shoes. Nina thought she had never seen anybody more sure of himself, who looked more as though he would know the right thing to do in any conceivable situation. . . And then she smiled, because he had said the right thing after all. He had put on a little show for Honey, just as she, Nina, had been doing.

"Nervous! Isn't he ridiculous, Nina? How could you help adoring him?"

"I do believe your mother is prejudiced."

And Honey beamed. "Well, don't be so sure of me, young fella!" said Nina. "I'm only taking you under advisement, understand, and the first black and blue mark on Honey. . . ph! you go out on your car!" She raised her head. "Here's to the bride."

Her glass tinkled in the open fireplace, and a second after, Richard's.

Honey looked so radiant and young, that it was absurd to have her for a mother.

She traced her new husband, missed the fireplace with her glass and knocked the car off a china cat on the sea-green taffeta cushion by the hearth. After Richard.

Third Kidnaper Recaptured After Fleeing Prison

Leader of Trio Arrested in Syracuse Parking Lot Shanty

Syracuse, N. Y. — It was freedom's end today for three members of the 1933 O'Connell kidnap gang—their capture effected through information supplied by a janitor and a parking lot attendant.

Percy "Angel Face" Geary, leader of the desperado triumvirate which staged a daring escape from the Onondaga county penitentiary at nearby Jamestown, N. Y., early Tuesday morning, was seized yesterday afternoon in a Syracuse parking lot shanty.

The other two, John Owley and Harold Crowle, recaptured Wednesday in a Syracuse rooming house on a tie supplied by a janitor—Ivan Whiteford, exactly 36 hours after their escape, were brought to Albany and lodged in the Albany county jail.

Meanwhile from Washington the justice department ordered two investigations of the escape, one through the federal prison bureau and the other through federal agents' questioning of the recaptured prisoners about the identity of a go-between who may have smuggled them guns.

Probe Opens Monday
District Attorney William C. Martin obtained a court order to impound a grand jury of 24 and planned to begin Monday an investigation into the break.

The trio faced long prison terms for the kidnaping of John L. O'Connell Jr., of Albany. They were being held in the Onondaga jail pending an appeal and were slated to become inmates of Alcatraz prison. Five others were convicted at the same time at Birmingham last August.

It was Casper Mirra, 20, a parking lot attendant who furnished the tip which led to Geary's capture.

Geary, injured when he leaped from a second floor window to escape capture at the time his two companions were seized, hobbled a block and a half to a warehouse across the street from a parking lot.

Mirra told police he called to Geary to "come on over and get warm. I've got a stove in here" and that Geary limped over and entered the shanty.

He stayed there 24 hours while Mirra obtained food and discussed the jail break. The attendant informed police after his suspicions were aroused, Mirra sent a parking lot customer after a policeman. Patrolman Tom Lewis, walked up to the shanty with drawn gun and captured Geary—wary and hungry.

Fire Blight Can Be Prevented by Pruning in Fall

Dead Limbs on Apple Trees Easily Spotted During Autumn

Now is the time when Outagamie county farmers likely will find it to their advantage to prune their apple trees for the control of fire blight, according to R. C. Swanson, county agricultural agent.

R. E. Vaughan, of the college of agriculture, who has been working with orchardists in the control of this disease, reports that dead limbs and cankers on the leaves can be spotted now better than they can in the spring. Vaughan finds that later many fire blight cankers will escape notice and will continue to remain a source of infection.

Although it is not necessary to disinfect the saw after each cut, as the tree is in a dormant condition, Vaughan believes it wise to make the cut well below the canker so as to be sure that it is all cut out.

If old trees of transcendent crab or Tolman sweet show fire blight cankers, it is best to cut out the whole tree as these varieties are usually a bad source of infection for other nearby trees, especially for such varieties as the Snow and the Wealthy.

Apple growers who may not be familiar with the fire blight disease and wish assistance in orchard management problems, should feel free to contact their county agent.

while 30 children were reported as normal. Nineteen infants, fifteen pre-school children and nine school children were examined. There were 33 small pox vaccinations made and 26 immunizations against diphtheria made.
